Snow blankets capitol on inauguration eve.

Kennedy Held Up

WASHINGTON (UPI)—John F. Kennedy takes the oath as the nation's 35th president today in a capital city all but paralyzed by a driving snowstorm that wrecked some inaugural eve festivities and disrupted the plans of two ex-presidents.

The frenzied capital, jammed with visitors for the inaugural, was thoroughly fouled up. Kennedy and his wife, Jacqueline, were forced to cancel several scheduled events when they could not make their way through snow-covered streets.

COLD FORECAST

For the noon swearing-in on Capitol Hill today, the weatherman predicted "windy and cold with variable cloudiness and a high near 32 degrees." During the night the temperature dropped to the low 20s.

Perhaps hardest hit by the storm was former president Herbert Hoover. He was flown in an Air Force transport from Miami, Fla., to Washington, but the plane was unable to land in the capital and Hoover decided to return to Florida.

PLACE OF HONOR

He had been scheduled for a special place of honor in the inaugural ceremonies, along with the nation's other two ex-presidents, Harry S. Truman and Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Truman also suffered. After visiting Kennedy at his home in the late afternoon, the Democratic ex-president took a look at the weather and decided to forgo the inaugural concert. Friends said Mrs. Truman insisted.

Until late in the day, Kennedy all but ignored the storm as he plowed through a crowded schedule, but as snow piled up on city streets, snarling traffic and marooning thousands, Kennedy was forced to cancel an appearance at two parties.

GET TO CONCERT

With hurried secret service men and local police doing their best to clear the way, he did make it to a reception for state governors and then, with his wife, moved on to Constitution Hall for the special inaugural concert where half the seats for the sold-out performance were vacant.

Many people, especially those coming in from the south, were stranded as far away as Richmond, Va.

Another Murder In Montreal

MONTREAL (UPI)—Tavern owner Emile Chapelle was shot to death last night in a fresh outbreak of violence in the city's two-year crime wave. His bulging wallet was untouched, ruling out robbery as a motive.

Firemen work in a blinding snow storm to fight flames belching from a Mexican airliner after it crashed and exploded while taking off in New York. Of 106 persons aboard 102 are believed to have survived.

102 SURVIVE AIR CRASH

Four Bodies Found

NEW YORK (AP)—A Mexican DC-8B jet airliner crashed on takeoff from Idlewild Airport in a snowstorm Thursday night. Police said they believe 102 of the 106 persons aboard managed to escape moments before the plane burned.

Frank Robb, chief of detectives, said, "We've found only four bodies and that looks like it."

AT LEAST 26

At least 26 of the survivors suffered injuries and were taken to hospital.

The $3,000,000 plane, bound for Mexico City, crashed through an airport fence and two light poles and hit an automobile.

Some survivors struggled back to the airport, some went directly home.

HEARD CRIES

One policeman heard cries coming from the flaming fuselage, but could not get near the plane because of the heat.

The plane crossed a road and came to a halt in a marsh about three miles northeast of Idlewild's main terminal.

SAW CRASH

Daniel Herbst, 36, witnessed the crash from behind the wheel of his automobile. "I heard a noise and stuck my head out. I saw this airplane right at the edge of the Idlewild fence from my right, going right across in front of me," said Herbst.

He said the plane was flaming prior to hitting a marsh. AWFUL LOT

"But it looked like everybody got out," Herbst said. "There were an awful lot of them. They were running across the marsh through the snow. Some had no shoes and some were in shirtsleeves."

Archibald Rosenberg, who hitch-hiked to his home nearby, said at least 20 persons walked away from the plane with him.

"All of a sudden I heard what seemed like a bump. It didn't sound normal to me. I told my wife, 'Put your head between your legs. I think we're going to crack up.'"

"The plane continued rolling. Then flames began to surround us on both sides."

CRACKED UP

"The plane cracked up on Rockaway Boulevard. We ran out and were about 50 yards from the plane. Then it blew up."

Medical Aid Halts To Many Jobless

By PETER BRUTON

Provincial government has stopped paying medical, dental and optical benefits to B.C.'s employable unemployed.

Welfare Minister Wesley D. Black said yesterday morning that the government decided to stop future benefits because Ottawa had consistently refused to share the costs.

NOT AFFECTED

Medical benefits provided by the government for elderly citizens receiving supplementary social allowances and for persons on social allowance rolls who are classified as unemployable will not be affected by the order.

In addition, those employable unemployed who are already eligible for benefits will not be denied them. The new order only applies to those who may lose their jobs after today.

BASIC NEEDS

"The policy of the provincial government is to meet the basic financial needs of the temporary unemployed person, but without federal government participation. It is considered that the provincial government should not assume the full responsibility for health service costs also," said Mr. Black.

The majority of those affected will be persons who are receiving unemployment insurance, he said.

ON RELIEF

Under the existing system medical benefits have been paid to employable unemployed after they have been on relief for three months or longer.

However, medical expenses incurred during this three-month period could subsequently be claimed by submitting receipts and asking for a rebate from the government.

The benefits covered all medical expenses such as the cost of doctors' fees and drugs, dental treatment, and fees for eyeglasses.

CONTRASTED

It is understood costs of providing such benefits soared in recent months.

Mr. Black said frequent requests had been made to Ot-

Russia Hungry For Wheat Deal

OTTAWA (CP)—A Russian purchase of Canadian wheat is being negotiated, commercial councillor Alexander Lobachev of the Soviet embassy said Thursday night.

The deal is being handled by Moscow, he said, and he was unable to confirm reports that the purchase through private grain interests might run around 150,000 tons or 5,500,000 bushels.

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Russia admitted Thursday that it is not producing enough food and needs a thorough overhaul of its agriculture ministry.

The Communist party ruled that the task is to "make the output of farm products always exceed the population's demand."

Plutonium Missing

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The defence department disclosed yesterday that a small amount of plutonium, a radioactive material used in one of the first atomic bombs, is missing from the naval research laboratory in southeast Washington.

'Noah's Ark' May Mean Survival

DALLAS, Tex. (UPI)—A General Electric scientist believes that man's survival in the event of nuclear war may depend upon a modern-day version of "Noah's Ark" which could spend weeks, months or even years underground or sea.

Dandridge M. Cole said he is surprised that construction hasn't already begun.

Belgians Threaten To Invade Congo

ELISABETHVILLE, Congo (UPI)—Belgian troops have threatened to invade Kivu and Oriental provinces of the Congo to save threatened Europeans unless the United Nations guarantees their safety, informed sources said last night.

The European sources reported that Belgium has stationed two battalions of troops along the borders of Ruanda-Urundi, the UN trusteeship it administers, across the border from the two provinces where Europeans have been endangered by warring tribes.

Information reaching Elisabethville said the Belgians are armed with 10 rocket-firing tanks in addition to their small weapons and that two transport planes are standing by to fly out Europeans.

In the Kivu provincial capital of Bukavu recently there has been a series of savage beatings of Europeans. Congolese troops have moved off the border so the Europeans cannot flee into Ruanda-Urundi.

The entire border situation was reported so tense that Indonesian forces there have persuaded the Congolese troops to draw back from the border and that negotiations are under way to get the Belgians to withdraw.

TERRACE, B.C. (CP)—A squirrel blacked out this northern community for a time.

The British Columbia Power Commission said a dead squirrel was found at the base of a power pole.

Only Expropriation Can Open Road to Public Says Williston

Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston said yesterday that nothing short of expropriation could open up a 51-mile logging road from Campbell River to Metchosin.

"This is different from a road on Crown-owned land," he said. "This is Crown-granted land and there's little the government can do unless we expropriate."

Comox Social Credit MLA

Dan Campbell charged earlier in the week that the Elk River Timber Company, by keeping the Gold River road to the west coast of Vancouver Island barred to the general public, was "making the government and the people look stupid."

He said even game wardens have a difficult time getting into the area.

REPEATED TRIES

Mr. Williston said yesterday that the government had made repeated representations to the Elk River company but the firm continued to place "rather severe restrictions" on the road's use.

"If it is decided that this is the only road route up the west coast I expect some action will have to be considered by the government,"

said the minister. "But right now, under this Crown-grant situation, the company is in the same position as you would be if the public drove across your lawn or through your driveway."

NO SMOKING

Mr. Williston said the only result of government representations to the company was that permission was given to a Coach Lines bus service along the road. Passengers are forbidden to smoke, no matter what the season may be.

"It's the most difficult situation of any concerning access to logging roads," said the minister. "Unless we expropriate the whole road for public purposes it is unlikely we can secure the control necessary."

ALBERNI—An elderly woman was killed and five persons injured, two seriously, in a head-on car-truck collision on an icy road five miles east of here last night.

Dead is Mrs. Isabelle Auld, 72, of Port Alberni, a passenger in the car which was demolished.

Three other occupants of the car, Mrs. J. Ewen, Mrs. I. Haigs and Mrs. J. Collis, all of Port Alberni, were taken to the Port Alberni hospital along with truck driver E. Louke and his wife, both of Alberni Valley.

Queen Sadly Tucks Tots Into Bed

LONDON (Reuters)—Queen Elizabeth sadly watched her two youngest children being tucked in their beds on the eve of a six-week separation from their world-travelling mother.

Friday at 12.45 p.m. local time the Queen and Prince Philip will leave London airport for New Delhi to start a 20,000-mile tour of India, Pakistan, Nepal and Iran. They are due in New Delhi

Saturday. It will be the first royal visit to India in 50 years.

The flight will mark the 12th time in almost nine years on the throne that the Queen has been separated from her children by an overseas tour;

This time she and Prince Philip will be away for the first birthday of Prince Andrew, Feb. 19. They are due back in London March 6 after bringing to 30 the number of countries and colonies they have visited either together or separately since the Queen's reign began in February, 1952. None of the Queen's previous foreign trips—which have occupied nine months of her reign—have clashed with any of the children's birthdays.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

THE man with the notebook started to talk while he was half-way through the swinging door. "There's no chicken in chicken loaf," he said angrily.

"He comes to see me every now and then, with criticisms and suggestions for improving our way of life."

"Are you sure there's no chicken?" I asked. "You're destroying my faith in something basic."

"I phoned a meat-packing house," he said. "They confessed. Beef, ham and pork, and a little chicken flavoring. That's all." He rifled through his notebook. "And here is something else. There is no grape in grape pop."

"How far will they go, in deceit? But perhaps you're only kidding."

"Far from it," he said solemnly. "I asked a bottling company. Not a drop of grape juice."

"Well, I suppose they don't actually promise grape juice," I said.

"But they imply it," said my friend. "There should be a law against such dishonesty."

I told him that I heartily agreed. He was already rifling through the book in search of another entry.

"Here's a point," he said. "People with a serious hereditary illness should have a mark on them."

"A mark?" I enquired. "A tattoo on the ear?"

"Well, a tattoo somewhere, so that a prospective husband or wife would know."

"It might interfere with courtship, if a girl ordered a man to peel off his shirt," I said, "or his socks. Surely there should be some mystery."

"A card for everyone, then, listing all ailments and defects. And anyone with a serious hereditary deformity or illness would be allowed to have only one child. If he had any more, he'd be fined. I know a man who has twisted feet. Hereditary. All his children have them."

"People would call it an invasion of private rights," I said. "For instance, I'm double-jointed on the first joint of my right forefinger. I bent the joint back in a revolting fashion, my only parlor trick."

"See?" I said. "My younger boy has that double joint. He doesn't look like me in any other way, but he has that. Would I be fined?"

"Possibly," said my friend.

"People might not like having their ills and flaws recorded in some filing cabinet, where any junior clerk could read their dossiers and if there was an unscrupulous man on the staff hold them up to blackmail."

"How would you feel?" I demanded, "if a little man sidled up to you in a bar and said out of the corner of his mouth 'Slip me a C-note, or I'll tell everybody your grandfather had rickets'?"

He shrugged and turned another page of his notebook. "Why do people wrench out the handbrake of the car so savagely, as if it was an enemy?" he wanted to know. "Why don't they pull it gently?"

"I can't tell you," I said, feeling vaguely guilty. My visitor closed his notebook as a sign that the interview had ended, and walked briskly out the swinging door, to continue the search for human faults and foibles.

Your Good Health

Mother's Emotional Upset May Cause Baby's Colic

By JOSEPH G. MOLNER, MD

"Dear Dr. Molner: Please write about colic! I've just had my third baby and he cries just like the others. I've tried everything, and nothing seems to work. I feed him cereal and fruit. He is gaining weight, and looks so healthy, but he has gas constantly. It seems as if all I do is burp him."

"Why don't doctors find a cure for colic?"—Worn Out Mother."

Now that you ask me, I guess there's only one answer: the reason doctors don't find a cure for colic is that we haven't been smart enough to do it. I devoutly wish we were.

However, we've made some observations that sometime help.

Colic is an abdominal cramp that hurts. The baby cries, obviously in pain, and flails his little arms and legs.

BURPING HELPS

Burping after a feeding usually brings up a little "gas"—really air that he has swallowed along with his food—and gives relief. Or maybe I should say that if baby is an air-swallower, burping prevents a lot of colic.

But that's not the only cause. Sometimes intestinal gas may result because the little fellow has an intolerance to sugars, starches or fats, or is allergic to some forms of protein. If this latter proves to be the case, it isn't usually a total surprise. It most likely turns out that one parent or both has some allergy, too. In addition, this type of colic is often accompanied by some other sign of allergy, such as eczema.

KEEP CALM

Still another factor, and one of great importance although I do not pretend to know just how it works, is the emotional attitude of the mother. Regularity of feeding is important in such cases. Perhaps, if mother is tense and jittery, baby absorbs this idea and becomes tense and jittery, too. As adults, we've all noticed that in the company of a calm person, we are calm; in the presence of a tense person, we become tense and nervous. How come? I don't know, but it's the way we are.

So here are some rules that will help in the majority of cases:

Calm, comfortable, regular feeding is always best.

Overfeeding (with the idea of stuffing more food into the baby to keep him quiet) just overloads his tummy.

But underfeeding, leaving him hungry, can bother him, too.

If the basic problem is something more serious—intolerance to certain foods, allergy, or possibly some organic trouble, the pediatrician may have to do some adjusting of the diet. But this isn't usually the case.

In the case of "Worn Out Mother," I get the impression, since she has had the same trouble with three babies, that perhaps her own approach may need some changes—haste, frustration, worry, irritability on her part may be communicating itself to the child.

HONEST LOOK

I don't mean to be critical or pontifical—but to mothers of colicky babies: Please take an honest look in the mirror. Are you overly-tense, impatient, over-worried, rebellious at having to take care of the baby, over-worked, uncertain, unsure? If so, baby's nervous colic may be a reflection of your own worries. It's happened a good many times before.

"Dear Dr. Molner: Do you think apple cider vinegar and honey, in place of sugar, is beneficial to health?"—J. E. In three words: No, no, no.

"Dear Dr. Molner: I heard about your gall remedy of epsom salts, elixir lactated pepain and glycerine. Please give me the amounts in the mixture. Respectfully, Mrs. E.M."

I don't know from whom you heard any such notion, but if you can remember who told you, go back and ask them. I don't know of any such thing. I never recommended it, and I am not very happy about having anybody say I did it.

Note to P.M.S.: I'm afraid you are misinformed; I do not have a pamphlet on "cure of hemorrhoids and fissures without surgery." Whether surgery is required is something that has to be decided in each individual case.

Out of prison and on probation today will be former Yugoslavian vice-president Milovan Djilas, who soured on Communism and was jailed in 1957 for "anti-state activity" after attacking President Tito. He published a book denouncing Red leaders as new class of exploiters.

Chrysler

'Threats' Ousted Executive

DETROIT (UPI)—The Chrysler Corporation yesterday denied charges of coercion brought by the firm's former president, William Newberg.

Newberg charged, in a suit filed yesterday in Wayne County circuit court, that he was ousted as president of the nation's third-largest car manufacturer last June 30 when he threatened to expose "gross improprieties" in the Chrysler management.

He charged that he was promised a job as chairman of Studebaker-Packard Corporation, that his wife was reduced to tears and that he was threatened with prison before he agreed to pay Chrysler $450,000.

A Chrysler spokesman called Newberg's charges "without foundation in fact."

Newberg said he had been made a scapegoat for top-level shenanigans by his predecessor as president, Chrysler board chairman L. L. Colbert, who was charged with hatching the conspiracy to "oust Newberg and collect the money."

The suit also charged the executives with threatening Newberg with warnings that his reputation would be "forever destroyed."

Cancer Victims 'Walking Around'

OTTAWA (CP)—A world-famous cancer expert said Thursday that a tremendous number of people "are walking around with cancer" and that he believes a sharp increase in lung cancer is due to smoking.

Dr. George E. Moore, director of the Roswell Park Memorial Institute at Buffalo, N.Y., made this statement at a press conference after delivering a paper on cancer research to the annual meeting of the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons.

Dr. Moore said heavy smoking among men started after the First World War. In a 10-year period there had been an increase of 608 per cent in lung cancer among males in upper New York state.

"Cancer of the lung is increasing rapidly and cancer of the stomach is decreasing," he told reporters. "Primarily, we think the increase in lung cancer is caused by smoking."

Lung cancer among women was about 10 years behind men.

"They started later. The earlier the start the worse it is. We have very good evidence on that score."

Dr. Moore said that one out of nearly every four cancer patients dies of the disease. This figure was growing partly because of an aging population.

He was asked whether he could estimate how many people have cancer today without knowing it. He replied only that a "tremendous number of people are walking around with cancer."

He said he saw no complete cure for cancer in the foreseeable future.

54 PER CENT

Even reputable firms like the T. Eaton Co. and Simpsons-Sears frequently charge 15 to 20 per cent interest in installment buying, he said, and the highest rate of interest charged by these two firms worked out to 54 per cent a year.

Challenged to name the authority for those figures, Mr. Argue retorted he had made the calculations himself and the "arithmetic has never been successfully challenged."

Get a mail order catalogue and work it out, he said.

Mr. Argue spoke as the Commons devoted its day to

Todd Lashes Murphy

Plans Not Sabotaged Says Passmore Ally

Charge that Coun. Leslie Passmore is trying to sabotage the Sarnia community plan is completely irresponsible and completely untrue, Coun. Harold Todd said last night.

The charge of sabotage came Wednesday from Coun. Stanley Murphy, chairman of the council's lands and planning committee.

"Coun. Murphy's strong point is theoretical and head-in-the-clouds planning," Coun. Todd said last night, "but when it comes to the practical carrying out of the plan he seems quite lost, wondering how to begin and how to get the plan off paper and in use."

OPPOSITE REEVE

By his defence of Coun. Passmore, Coun. Todd has ranged himself in opposition to both Coun. Murphy and Reeve George Chatterton, who has supported Coun. Murphy's criticism of Coun. Passmore.

"Coun. Passmore, practical as usual, wishes to begin to implement the plan by the carrying out of orderly rezoning in the Cadboro Bay-Gordon Head area, which will rapidly build up," Coun. Todd continued.

"Public hearings as suggested by Coun. Passmore must, by law, be held to do this. Does this sound like sabotaging the plan?"

"To do otherwise would be to lock the door after the horse has escaped, as it were. No plan is any good until it is in use."

"Perhaps being shown how to put the plan in use explains Coun. Murphy's irresponsible statement."

Both the Liberal and Progressive Conservative parties were high-interest parties and neither had ever backed his bill. Finance Minister Fleming, as an opposition member on the 1956 committee study of interest rates, had "run interference for the finance companies."

Interest rates now prevailing were certainly legal but "if the government is opposed to this legalized gangsterism why don't they do something about it?"

Mr. Argue's prediction came true. The bill was "talked out" and now goes to the bottom of the private bills heap, with little chance of coming up again this session.

M. Douglas Morton (PC, Toronto Davenport) said he too is aware of interest rate abuses and added that the government should try to eliminate them. But he objected to Mr. Argue being too broad in his accusations and "painting everybody with the same brush."

China Plight Grows

LONDON (UPI)—Communist China's famine is assuming alarming proportions and there is no sign of appreciable Russian help, diplomatic sources said yesterday.

They said the Chinese, through a mixture of pride and political considerations, have not appealed for aid and the Kremlin has not offered it.

SEVERE BLOW

The diplomats said the agricultural catastrophe which has befallen China has dealt a severe blow to its ambitious plan for a big leap forward that was to bring it into the front rank of industrial powers.

The Russians, having agricultural troubles of their own, may have shipped some wheat directly to some Chinese distress areas, but there is no indication of organized help on a large scale.

BUYING GRAIN

Communist China is now buying grain from Australia—a reported 260,000 tons of wheat—for early shipment. Peking also is said to be looking for emergency shipment of Canadian wheat.

Weeps for Husband

Weeping for jailed husband is Mrs. Patrice Lumumba, sitting barefooted on ground in front of her Leopoldville hut and gesturing as her two-year-old son looks on. Deposed Congo premier was transferred to jail at Jadotville, 65 miles from Elisabethville, from Thysville army camp on orders of President Joseph Kasavubu after Lumumba got free for few hours last weekend.—(AP Photofax.)

Green Hopeful for Laos Plan

'Red Technical Aid to Leftists Charged in Vientiane

OTTAWA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Green said Thursday he is hopeful that a formula can be worked out for getting an international truce team into Laos, where a civil war is being fought.

He told the Commons he hopes that Britain and Russia will request that a commission representing Canada, India and Poland be sent to Laos to try to obtain the consent of King Savang Vathana for truce operations there.

The three countries made up the International Control Commission for Laos which adjourned in 1958. Britain and Russia were co-chairmen of the 1954 Geneva conference which established the commission.

VIENTIANE, Laos (Reuters)—The Laotian army chief claimed here Thursday there were between 15 and 50 Russian aviation technicians advising leftist forces controlling the Plain of Jars, a strategic plateau dominating central Laos.

Gen. Quane Ratikone added there were also about 300 Chinese Communist and North Vietnamese instructors working with the leftist forces fighting for control of this Southeast Asian kingdom.

He claimed pro-Communist Pathet Lao guerrillas captured when the town of Vang Vieng fell Monday reported that three Russians pulled out of the town an hour ahead of the advancing rightists.

The statement appeared to downgrade previous Laotian government reports which claimed that several mixed Russian, Chinese Communist and North Vietnamese battalions were operating with the leftist troops.

Quarrelling Swine Tranquillized

GLASGOW (AP)—Scottish pigs are being given tranquillizers to stop them quarrelling. The West of Scotland Agricultural College in Glasgow reported Thursday damage done by fighting pigs has already been reduced a third—thanks to the "peace pills."

'Train-Busting' U.S. Wars hip

Old Korean 'Rival' Calling Here

Arrival of the American destroyer USS de Haven at Esquimalt this afternoon will recall memories of Korean War days when a Pacific Command warship topped the "Train Busters Club."

Cmdr. John Hovey, executive officer at HMCS Naden, in those days was skipper of the Esquimalt-based destroyer HMCS Crusader. The warship operated with UN forces in Korean waters and often during a 14-month tour of operations that ended July 1, 1953, teamed up with USS de Haven.

Both Crusader—now stationed at Halifax with the RCN Atlantic Command—and de Haven were heavily engaged in training with their guns behind enemy lines.

On one memorable occasion, Crusader slipped past the American warship and hit an enemy supply train with the visit to Victoria while carrying out training exercises for the first salvo from her guns. On this occasion, USS de Haven is paying a weekend at San Diego, Calif.

Gloomy Deans

AT THEIR recent Ottawa rally the Liberals put what they thought was a spoke in the New Party's wheel by outbidding it with a spurge of promises designed to win popular favor. They have also taken over another CCF role; that of the gloomy deans.

It was always a characteristic of the CCF to indulge in pessimistic talk, to view the country as going to the dogs. Born in the depression years the party was smothered in the philosophy of blue ruin. Its outlook was colored by the hope that this emphasis would enlarge its chances of political success.

Panting to get back into power the Liberals are following suit. As Mr. Diefenbaker so rightly says they seem to gloat over the present economic recession, hoping that by constant parroting of this theme they will thereby indict the government as responsible and so improve their own political prospects. It is a mean role, correctly termed by the prime minister as selling Canada short.

No one can minimize current problems of unemployment or the economic setback being experienced, but in a country of the Canadian potential this is a temporary circumstance. There must always be ebbs and flows in the prosperity of a nation, just as there are in all human affairs. Elements beyond the control of any government enter the picture and play their part. The Diefenbaker regime is doing all it can to turn the tide.

It will not be easily turned if loose and irresponsible talk puts a malaise on the nation, inducing a frame of mind that stultifies ambition and hampers progressive action. Confidence in the future is impaired when an atmosphere of doubt and dismay is engendered by the kind of defeatist talk in which the Liberals are indulging. Nor is there the slightest warrant for such gloomy outlook.

The same uninspiring attitude affects the Liberals in the realm of national defence, wherein they advocate a passive and neutralist role inconsistent with national dignity and the reality of military needs. They are wallowing in the depths of gloom and inaction, instead of joining with the government to rally the nation to positive and optimistic endeavor in all fields.

And in the main this attitude is geared to the belief that by harping on war they will capitalize on it at the government's expense. They seem to be enjoying the present difficulties of the country.

The Battle-Plan

IN THE most important pronouncement to come out of the Kremlin since the end of the 1939-45 war, Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev outlined international Communism's master battle-plan to conquer the world.

It is now certain that the leaders of the Communist nations have fully accepted Russia's "soft" approach to international affairs rather than the more aggressive attitude hoped for by Red China. Momentous as this decision is to the rest of the world—inasmuch as theoretically it seeks to avoid armed conflict on a total or "brush-fire" basis between the East and the West—it will bring little comfort to the democratic nations.

Contained in Mr. Khrushchev's speech was the warning that his "soft" tactics would not apply to Communist participation in wars of national "liberation" such as that going on in Algeria. He may well have added to that unfortunate country a list of others in which he and his allies have sought—with no little success—to interfere.

His strategy is as simple as it is obvious: to undermine the emerging democratic governments of smaller countries all over the world; to fan the embers of insignificant political disputes into the flames of civil war, and to encourage revolt against lawful administrations—all with the single aim of displacing the West's forces until they are no longer effective.

The success of Mr. Khrushchev's tactics has already been proven—not only in Algeria, but in Cuba, Laos, and to a large extent in the Congo and other new African republics.

The Western alliance must recognize this and make preparations to meet fire with fire. If they do not, Mr. Khrushchev's dream of a Communist dominated world may become reality sooner than even he believes possible.

Parity Not Warranted

FOR two main reasons the Victoria city police union can expect little support for the requested increase in pay. The first, as stated by Mayor Scurrah, is that this is not a good time for civic employees to make any further demands on the taxpayers, many of whom are out of work themselves.

As the mayor has pointed out, employees of the city in a time when jobs are hard to find enjoy security of employment the year around, with guaranteed wages and a variety of other valuable benefits.

Other civic staffs in Greater Victoria have shown appreciation of the situation and have refrained from making demands on the taxpayers this year, except for minor adjustments in some cases. Their restraint shows good judgment at a time when the cost-of-living index is more or less static and such variations as occur in it from time to time fail to justify increases in wages.

The second reason why the police demand is ill-judged lies in the basic of it. The police of Victoria want wage parity with their opposite numbers in Vancouver—a familiar argument in favor of pay increases here but one lacking a sound foundation.

For the local police to enjoy parity with Vancouver it would have to be shown that conditions of employment also are equal, and the union would have a hard job to do that. Whatever other conditions may prevail, there are marked differences between police duty here and in Vancouver. The pressure is much less here, and the risks to life and limb are in no way comparable to those encountered there.

That is not to say that Victoria police have an easy life; they haven't, but in general the conditions here are preferable to those on the mainland. Consequently, the Victoria police cannot reasonably expect to be paid the same wages. They should be willing to make concessions for the advantages they enjoy, not the least of which is a much more favorable climate for the kind of work a policeman has to do.

The Crummet Case

WE Victorians must not take too much to heart the fact that our famed institution—the crummet—was flamed recently by two American tourists who apparently mistook it for a warmed-up breakfast pancake. To ignore such remarks will go far to prove our greatness.

Interpreting the News

The Kennedy Glamour

By JOSEPH MacKENNAN Canadian Press Staff Writer

THE real story of John F. Kennedy, despite the acclaim, has yet to begin.

So much has been written about the gallant young politician that an American reader might get the impression his goal will be reached Friday when he becomes president of the United States.

His task, of course, is only beginning. The aura of glamour and even romance that surrounds Kennedy and his attractive wife seems to have a hypnotic and dazzling effect on millions, natural in a country where success, youth and beauty are revered.

But the crowds so eager to show their admiration—almost adulation—of Kennedy during the presidential campaign, in New York for instance, could be equally unimpressed if he faltered in the years ahead.

His brilliant success in reaching the White House at only 43 could be soured through future reverses to the country, even if they occurred through no fault of his own. Older Americans remember how another brilliant man, Herbert Hoover, was blamed for the world-wide depression of the 1930s.

After all, the Scots proved theirs by keeping silent in the face of innumerable adverse comments passed on the haggis; and the north-country Englishman achieved his by holding his peace in the face of much unkind criticism of his tripe and onions and black-pudd.

Kennedy's main task is seen in handling the wily Soviet premier who sought so diligently to humiliate outgoing President Eisenhower. Another legacy of the Eisenhower administration is the break-off of relations with Cuba. The new president will be looked to for a way of re-establishing close friendship with the Cuban people—and all South Americans—without appeasing the Cuban boss.

As the first Roman Catholic president, Kennedy knows he will be under scrutiny, especially in matters relating to education, although he has frequently stressed his belief in the separation of church and state.

But all this will be forgotten in the golden gala inauguration today because there's ample evidence that the American people have taken to the boyish, flashing smile of Kennedy almost as much as they did to the boyish, friendly grin of Eisenhower.

"Wasn't the one with the cap supposed to stop the ball going in the net?"

Thinking Aloud

"... of shoes—and ships—and sailing wax—of cabbages and kings"

By TOM TAYLOR

THIS morning President Eisenhower relinquishes his great office and a new era begins for America and perforce for the world. Each president impregnates his nation, and to a degree outsiders also, with the panache of his mind and character.

It is a great honor to be president of the U.S.A., the highest to which any American may aspire, and there was a touch of sadness in Mr. Eisenhower's farewell television address the other evening. It was held in check, at no point did emotion get the better of him, and it derived probably from disappointment that the closing months of his rule should coincide with an increase in world tensions.

He came to the White House eight years ago with buoyant hope, and indeed quickly brought the Korean War to a close. Being the man he is fate would have been kinder had a lessening of these tensions marked the mandatory end of his terms of office.

When he steps aside today Eisenhower ends not eight years but 30 years of service to his country, as soldier and statesman. His career in fact has been unique. He never heard an angry bullet until he became a generalissimo in the field; he never had a link with politics until he became president and thus the head of a political party.

If ever a man was drafted to eminence it was the man known the world over as "Ike," whose name as a household word now rivals that of the never-to-be-forgotten "Winnie."

One can recall his astonishment, recounted in his war memoirs, when President Truman visited him overseas when he was the supreme SHAEF commander, and in effect offered him the presidency of the U.S.A. It was his stature as an individual that induced such an offer, although undoubtedly Mr. Truman had in mind that Eisenhower would be a Democratic president and not as things turned out, a Republican president.

Character will out, and perhaps no greater example of this in modern times can be noted than in the life story of Dwight Eisenhower. He evoked trust and goodwill because obviously he was a man of personal worth. People felt safe with him. Goodness alone is not enough either in war or in times of international unease, but Eisenhower did manage to keep the peace while in office and his name was enough to assuage many minds. It had a magic for people all over the world.

Posterity may not assess him as either a great general or a great president. That remains to be seen. As a supreme commander he was handicapped by having subordinates of much greater military experience and flair, albeit their genius was necessary for victory. But no other could have welded diverse forces together as he did; none could reconcile separate aims yet retain authority as he was peculiarly equipped to do.

He had a special quality of his own that made him a successful generalissimo.

As a president his inexperience again was something to be overcome, yet here again the force of his character illuminated the presidency. He made it shine with a certain grandeur. If he lacked the penetrating shrewdness that long association with statecraft imbues, his personal aura was unmistakable. There is no better tribute to the place he held than the general awareness that had the constitution permitted him to run again he would still be president of his country.

Perhaps of course he would not have wanted to run. Fifty years of service is a long time, and his labors have not been easy. No doubt Mr. Eisenhower is glad that private life may now claim him. Yet no doubt also his farewell address hid personal regret. As has been truly said parting is a sweet sorrow.

People everywhere will admire him. His name will long be held in respect, and that is a legacy of which any man may well be proud. Not all men of eminence have had his integrity of spirit and character, and as a claim to lasting fame this is a worthy quality indeed.

He leaves behind him in fact a challenge to his successor by virtue of his own example.

Budget in No Sense Retaliation

ST. PETERSBURG TIMES: Just how little any nation can be an island unto itself economically could not better be illustrated than by the present careful fiscal manoeuvring Canada is having to do because of our trouble with balance of payments and the drain on our gold reserves.

Because we have an imbalance of $3,500,000,000—not on trade, but on capital movement—we think we have troubles. But consider Canada with a $1,000,000,000 adverse trade balance. Also, while we have $40,000,000,000 net in foreign assets abroad, Canada has a net external debt of about $17,000,000,000.

Translate both of these to our scale and it is as though we had a $10,000,000,000 annual adverse trade balance and $200,000,000,000 in external debt.

But because we are concerned over the drain on our gold and our adverse balance of payments, we are taking measures which may worsen Canada's plight. The "Buy American" directive, if rigidly enforced, could result in substantial dollar losses to Canada—who, incidentally, buys 60 per cent of her imports from us.

The consequence of this is that the new Canadian budget contains several proposals designed to make investment of American capital in Canada less attractive.

In no sense is this "retaliation" on Canada's part. It is simply that our two nations are in the same economic boat, and when we start rocking same, Canada has to take offsetting action.

This is an important factor for the new administration to keep in mind when it tackles the problem of our balance of payments. We don't want to hurt our best customer and staunchest international friend in the process of getting our own books squared away.

DETROIT NEWS: The Canadian dollar premium also reduced the prices on imports shipped into Canada. That meant that the inflow increased. That also meant that Canadian-made goods didn't sell so well, and that fewer people were needed to produce fewer goods. The consequence: unemployment rose.

Supply has been overtaking demand in raw materials and manufactured goods and capacity has been overtaking order books. When Canada's economic capacities were stretched to the limit as the nation surged forward, domestic resources had to be supplemented with goods and capital from abroad. Today, however, resources aren't stretched and capacity is underutilized.

So Canada has called a halt, and the foreign investor who chases the Canadian premium dollar will be taxed more for the privilege.

Any step that reduces the free flow of international trade and clogs the general movement toward greater currency convertibility is regrettable. But we ourselves have just had to take certain steps to protect our dollar and our gold and when we did so we not only asked our European allies to shell out more but to understand why we had to do what we did. It is on the same basis that we should try to understand Canada's problem.

In saying so we hold no brief for the Canadian nationalists who holler in fear at what they say is foreign investment control of their destiny. There was a time they wanted capital and we, and we alone, could supply it, and did.

THE JOURNAL OF COMMERCE:

It may be some time yet before the full implications of the Canadian tax increases can be determined.

It does appear that the heavier taxation of interest and dividend payments will exert some indirect pressures on trade across the border, and that it will not only discourage Canadian borrowing here, which is what Ottawa wants to do, but new direct investment in Canada, which is something else again.

A lower Canadian dollar will, of course, tend to encourage Canada's exports while discouraging imports, and there is a fair chance it may help to reduce the huge current imbalance in U.S.-Canadian trade. In that way it could relieve Ottawa of considerable worry.

It is not of course up to Americans, who are rather sensitive to outside advice themselves, to tell the Canadians how they should run their country, or to condemn any and all efforts Ottawa makes to bring its trade into better balance.

But an effort should be made on this side of the border to persuade Canadian officials to ease the impact of the blow, even if they cannot deflect it.

PORTLAND PRESS HERALD:

American reluctance to buy finished Canadian products tends to keep Canada in a kind of economic colonial bondage to this country. It was one of the reasons advanced for Canadian imposition of new tariffs on imports from the United States and for alterations in the favorable tax policy to discourage borrowing abroad by both government and corporations.

The Packsack

By GREGORY CLARK

INTO the highway restaurant where we had stopped for lunch came three hunters all done up in their winter sport clothes and shooting caps. One of them was carrying three large white snowshoe hares which abound in the cedar swamps of the neighborhood. He was showing them to the proprietor with pride.

A middle-aged lady in a milk coat got up from her table and accosted the three hunters grouped around the cash register.

"How you grown men," she declared in the cultivated bassy voice that goes with her age and social status, "can go about shooting these harmless, innocent little creatures is beyond me. What FUN to you get out of slaughtering these fragile things?"

The three sportsmen were abashed. They did not answer the lady. They retreated with their rabbits to a far corner of the restaurant, flushed and muttering. And lady in the milk coat rejoined her party with a proper air of triumph.

A tall boy of about sixteen with a schoolbag slung over his shoulder, a local boy, I imagine, paid his check and walked over to the lady's table. "What kind of a coat is that you have on, ma'am?" he asked stiffly. And walked out.

I bet that boy will end up in politics. He got several votes right there.

Passing the Buck

(From The Winnipeg Free Press)

FOR some months now Mr. Khrushchev has been in hot water with his colleagues in the Kremlin over his agricultural policies. Russian agriculture has, under Mr. Khrushchev's direction, not been living up to expectations.

A scapegoat for this failure must be found; and Mr. K. apparently is out to make sure that he won't be it. The fault, according to the Russian leader, lies with the managers of collective farms who have been faking crop and production figures, and covering up their failures with a multitude of excuses.

Thus Mr. Khrushchev exposes himself as being no better than his underlings; he is making excuses for his failure just as the collective farm managers have been making excuses for theirs. The Soviet leader is reported to have said: "Self-respecting leaders should resign and say, 'I am bankrupt, I cannot manage affairs.' But this does not often happen."

Indeed it does not. Mr. Khrushchev shows no signs of handing in his resignation.

Letters to the Editor

10-Cent Meters

Our city council is now acting like a bunch of spoiled brats. We turned down the View Street parking lot and in retaliation the city council is now raising the parking meter fee to 10 cents. Why? Is it because they want to chase all the business out of town? Or has someone lost out on the parking lot?

In the first place are these parking meters legal? I have lived in Greater Victoria all my life and as yet I have not remembered these meters being voted in. I have also been under the impression that these men elected by us are there to serve the taxpayers and to have anything that concerns the taxpayers' welfare brought to a vote.

These parking meters are concerning the welfare of all our businessmen in this city, who also pay a heavy licence and also a heavy tax on their property. When they install these 10-cent meters how many of us are coming into town to shop? We are going to the shopping centres in the outlying districts where parking is free.

What is going to become of our businesses in the city? Bankruptcy and more unemployment is the result. Goodness knows we have enough of that now.

GEORGE LANCHICK.

Aid in Distress

Your leading editorial today on the possibility of misplaced foreign aid expresses the thoughts of many.

There is, however, one organization in Victoria which helps the victims of war and political strife. It is the Adoption Committee for Aid to Displaced Persons. Nothing is spent on administration beyond stamps and paper. Each case is examined and genuine. We receive acknowledgment for every dollar sent.

President, Adoption Committee for Aid to Displaced Persons in Europe, B.C. Branch (Victoria). 1573 Wilmet Place.

Signs of Improvement

It was encouraging to read in the daily press, in so short a period as a weekend, four references of a humane nature concerning creatures other than man:

The inclusion of "kindness to animals" in "duty towards my neighbor" in the new catechism to come before the Church of England leaders this month.

Brian Charlton concerned about his dog lost in the waters of Bowker Creek. (How did it get in, Brian?) SPCA Inspector William Bell of Burnaby rescuing a Labrador from a deep gravel pit.

Cal Smith, who had needlessly killed a wolf seal, feeling bothered about it, having the moral courage to make public admission of this.

Perhaps the human race is improving.

H. BLUNDELL WALSH.

2479 McNeill Avenue.

Timely Changes

Might I have just a word in appreciation of the column of Mr. Tom Taylor, Jan. 15. Mr. Taylor drew attention to the pending change proposed by British churches to the authorized version of the Bible. Mr. Taylor's comment is that since the King James version was written in the language and knowledge pertaining to 1611, and that since both have undergone great changes, the pending or proposed change is timely and greatly needed.

However, Mr. Taylor expresses doubt concerning the welcome this new version will receive. But since the 1611 version is as he says both archaic and difficult for modern knowledge to now accept, all that is needed is to stick to the truth of modern science in language lacking myth, fear and superstition, relating only known facts which based on reality of discovery and knowledge are easily understood.

Modern 'Art'

I have noted your illustration in Thursday's paper of modern art on a bedsheet, also from time to time daubs on blotting paper and smears resulting from wiping surplus paint from the brushes, called modern art.

If this dreamy-eyed visionary method is the result of our present-day education methods it would be better for all concerned if we got back to the little red schoolhouse, where it was no hardship to pay our taxes and we could also exist.

Impound the Parents

We hear so much about impounding dogs; why not impound a few parents for not teaching children kindness to animals?

Two little boys were pounding rocks at a little dog one day this week for no reason at all. If the dog had bitten them (which it should) what a hue and cry there would have been. The mothers do nothing to stop these children so why not impound the mothers?

Wasted Resources

In his column of Jan. 13 G. E. Mortimore quotes Albert DeMezey, industrial consultant, as stating that an important factor holding back a B.C. steel industry—perhaps a Vancouver Island steel industry—is that "some powerful interests do not want to see B.C. develop steel making. It suits their purpose to ship the ore out to Japan and keep B.C. as a market for imported steel."

According to reports, half of the available iron ore is wasted under the present system of operation. If that is true, then B.C. has at present known iron ore resources to turn out a half million tons of steel or more annually, for one hundred years or more. Thirty million tons have already been contracted for, to be shipped to Japan, according to press reports.

It is time we develop our own steel industry. What about Columbia power? Is it going to go the way of our iron ore? How are we planning on resolving our unemployment problem, for example?

Wheels Turn in Belgium After 30 Days' Idleness

BRUSSELS (Reuters)—In the French-speaking south of Belgium again yesterday after 30 days of idleness enforced by strikes against government-proposed austerity measures.

A government spokesman described the return to work as "general," although strikers in the French-speaking south were making a last-ditch stand around Charleroi, Liege and La Louviere.

Belgian railroads returned to normal timetables in the biggest breakthrough of the bitter strike which claimed four lives and scores of injured.

Elderly Man Collapses Block from His Home

Arthur L. Fox, 65, of 986 Bank Street, died suddenly yesterday morning, a block from his home, apparently following a heart attack.

City police were told that a man was lying on the sidewalk outside 1047 Bank. They found Mr. Fox and took him to Royal Jubilee Hospital, where he was pronounced dead.

Burglar Bungles Bulbs

Exploding flashbulbs gave the show away for a burglar in Oak Bay early yesterday. Oak Bay police said a burglar broke into the home of L. D. Doherty, 2215 Florence.

Occupants were awakened at 12:45 a.m. by exploding flashbulbs. Apparently the thief had grabbed a $300 camera, complete with flashbulbs, some jewelry, watches and a wallet containing $75. On his way out he tripped, exploding the bulbs and dropping the camera.

Outside he took cash from the wallet which, with watches and jewelry, were found where they'd been thrown.

Several break-ins were reported to city police yesterday at the White Swan Laundryette, 1811 Fort, Dennis' Fish Market, 405 Yates, Victoria Van and Storage, 510 Fort, and Macdonald's Used Furniture, Broad and Pandora. A total of $39 in cash and $110 in cheques was taken.

LONDON (Reuters)—The Archbishop of York, Dr. Arthur Michael Ramsey, was named to succeed Dr. Geoffrey Fisher as Archbishop of Canterbury Thursday.

He was nominated by the Queen—titular head of the Church of England—on the recommendation of Prime Minister Macmillan. The appointment will be confirmed later in a formal election by the Greater Chapter of Canterbury Cathedral.

Dr. Ramsey, 56, will take over as spiritual head of the Anglican church June 1 on Fisher's retirement. He will be succeeded at York by Dr. Frederick Donald Coggan, Bishop of Bradford.

BETTER RELATIONS

One of Dr. Ramsey's new responsibilities will be extending his predecessors' initiative toward better relations with the Roman Catholic Church.

Dr. Ramsey, a thick-set figure with sparse grey hair, has a reputation as one of the most learned of present-day English churchmen.

He is a staunch upholder of the Anglican church's official ban on remarriage by divorced persons.

On another controversial question, he has sanctioned birth control but warned against "the indiscriminate use" of contraceptives.

Dr. Ramsey is married but has no children. The son of a Cambridge University mathematician, he was ordained in 1928 after being educated at Repton private school—where Dr. Fisher was at one time headmaster—and Cambridge University.

Citizen to Ask Queen To Rule on Gaglardi

VANCOUVER (CP)—Shopkeeper Claude F. Mitchell, 44, says he has started a petition that will ask the Queen to rule whether Highway Minister P. A. Gaglardi should take his seat in the B.C. legislature.

"I want a ruling on the eligibility of Mr. Gaglardi to take his seat in view of his conviction for contempt of court," Mr. Mitchell said today.

The minister and Claude Thornton, an Idaho contractor, were found guilty of contempt recently for ignoring a court order concerning payment for highway work done by a company of Mr. Thornton.

Mr. Gaglardi was fined $1,000. He lost an appeal before the B.C. Court of Appeal and announced plans to take his case before the Supreme Court of Canada.

Mr. Thornton was jailed, then released by court order.

Mr. Mitchell, a radio dealer who came here from Australia five years ago and who said he is a member of no organization and has no political connection, said he has been waiting for Mr. Gaglardi to resign or be expelled by the government.

He said Mr. Gaglardi's case would result in a royal commission in Australia.

Meanwhile the B.C. Court of Appeal, in written reasons for upholding the minister's contempt conviction, said Gaglardi and his subordinates "could not escape knowing" that a supreme court order forbade them from sending a cheque to Thornton's company, Union Contractors Ltd.

Recalling evidence that the highways minister had ordered the cheque sent only after advice from the attorney-general's department, Mr. Justice C. H. O'Halloran said:

"Acting on legal advice is not an answer in court, most certainly when it is not good advice. It may, of course, mitigate punishment or damages. It is noted here that Gaglardi was fined, he was not committed to prison."

Negro Spanked His Boy

Parent Ousts Teacher

TACOMA (AP)—A warrant charging disorderly conduct was issued Thursday for Daniel Sifford of Roy, accused by a Negro school teacher of making derogatory remarks about her race and ordering her from the school.

The man's son, Wayne Sifford, was reported to have told his father that Mrs. Mildred Bettis spanked him Wednesday in her Grade 2 class at the Lackamas School.

Mrs. Bettis, the school's only Negro teacher, reported the incident to Neils Nelson, Pierce County deputy prosecutor.

Gold Price Will Rise Mine Chief Predicts

VANCOUVER (CP)—Francis Joulin, president of B.C.'s biggest gold mine, says the United States will probably boost its price for gold in September.

Asked in an interview Wednesday why September, the president of Bralorne Pioneer Mines Ltd., said:

"Like the Chinese, face is everything to the Americans. They will never take that decision unilaterally."

"They will probably wait for the meeting of the International Monetary Fund in September, then get a country like Timbuctu to propose an increase in the price."

He predicted Americans will continue to buy gold bullion abroad despite recent U.S. regulations forbidding them from holding stocks of bullion abroad.

"I can't see that making it illegal to buy gold is going to stop the Americans. Nothing is so attractive to the American as sin. Now that it is illegal, they will probably buy more than ever."

Garden Notes

Pop In the Onions

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRAS

In yesterday's column we were discussing the construction of a simple heated propagating case in which to germinate seeds. With such a "greenhouse within a greenhouse," or even in an outdoor frame fitted with a soil-heating cable, a start can be made now with some flower and vegetable sowings so that sturdy young plants will be on hand when quindoor planting time rolls around.

Onions should be one of the first seeds to go in for, to raise the big exhibition-quality bulbs, the first sowings should really be made around the last week in January, for these need a long season of growth. Leeks, Brussels sprouts and cauliflower can all go in now, too, giving the seed flats a temperature of around 65 degrees.

When the little seedlings appear, their flats should be removed from the propagating case and grown on at a somewhat lower temperature and with all the sunlight they can get. When the plants are about two inches high, it will be time to start another batch of the same kinds.

In March, I usually make a practice of starting more leeks, onions, cauliflowers, cabbage and lettuce, but this time in an unheated frame or in an open greenhouse. Then, in mid-April, I repeat these sowings in open, outdoor beds, adding savoy in the list. In case you don't know this vegetable, a savoy is a cabbage with a permanent wave.

All this sounds rather like a big and complicated job, but it isn't really, for only very small amounts of seed are sown at any one time. The advantage of these staggered sowings is a continuous supply of fresh vegetables without any glut or shortages.

Quite a few gardeners start their first batch of tomato plants around this time of the year. This is fine if you have a heated greenhouse in which the plants may be kept growing steadily, with lots of sunlight and adequate ventilation, but January is far too early for the home gardener who must raise his plants on a sunny window sill indoors.

The light in even the sunniest kitchen window is far lower in intensity than in a greenhouse, and in consequence, the plants would be skinnily, spindly specimens by planting-out time, through being kept too long in doors. March is time enough to put in the seeds—in fact, I am beginning to think you get even better results if you wait until early April.

Given a propagating case or a heated frame, snapdragon seed can be sown now for an early display. A temperature between 60 and 65 is best for strong germination but, once the little plants get going, they must be grown on in cool, airy conditions. It is a good idea to open up the frame fully on fine, sunny days, for your object should be to produce short, stocky specimens rather than big, lush, sappy plants.

Snapdragons are inherently hardy plants—hardy enough to survive an average winter outdoors—and no good can come from pampering the plants once the seedlings have emerged. Eansies and violas, too, will do much better if germinated in warmth, then grown on in considerably cooler conditions.

Another flower which needs an early start is the little blue lobelia, used for a border edging around our outdoor flower beds. The seeds need about the same temperature for good germination—60 to 65 degrees—but the seedlings require a little more warmth than the hardier snapdragons to keep them moving ahead.

John Crosby

Critic at Large

The Decline of Good Taste

Mischa Elman, who celebrates his 70th birthday Saturday, shed some soft and luminous light on the world of the artist the other day, speaking with great insight on popularity, on criticism, on money.

"The whole psychology of people judging talent centres now around the amount of money certain people make," said Mr. Elman sadly. "When I was a young man, a great artist was not judged by box office. You may laugh at this, but nevertheless it is the truth that box office spoke against one in those days. Stage people who could attract the masses were considered cheap and vulgar."

"It was felt then that the masses were ignorant. This is no longer true. Everybody now has a television set, a car, regardless of financial standing. We do more for the masses today. But then just because we're selling more and more records doesn't mean the people buying them appreciate the records."

"It's true that television, radio and good movies, and good records have helped to spread more culture among people and more appreciation, but also we know every epoch reached certain heights in certain countries and then there was a decline. Many countries were famous for producing great writers and musicians, who helped the rest of the world. Then something happened and there is a change. I feel now that although we are spreading more culture among the masses, there is a decline in good taste."

"There is a decline, I think, because when an author or a composer or a performer loses the imagination, the fantasy, that gives beauty to whatever he creates, then I find these people are in a decline. What I see today is a great deal of vulgarity, on the stage, in the movies. I'm sorry but I do."

"They have lost completely the subtleties of life. Balzac also wrote risqué stories but these stories were full of wit and delicacy and they were never vulgar. You know yourself what goes on when you go to the theatre—I don't have to draw a picture of what goes on. They talk about things and use words..." He sighed. "Maybe it's real but—let me say this—many real things we all do but we don't do in front of people."

"We all have to create some illusions about ourselves. Human beings used to try to overcome ugliness. Why are we going back to it? God gave us intelligence—that's what I'm told—and we're supposed to use it. He also gave us the ability to improve on nature and, in many instances, we do. We can only do this through fantasy and imagination. When we do not do this, then we can only leave nature as it is. Then we get into all sorts of ugliness."

Grandpa Chaplin 'Sitter'

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—Nothing like having an obliging grandfather who loves to baby-sit. Sidney Chaplin, whose wife, Nellie Adams, costars with Donald O'Connor in "Wonders of Aladdin," left their three-month-old baby with Grandfather Chaplin in Switzerland when he flew to Tunis to visit his wife. Chaplin has so many kids of his own that one more makes no trouble.

New Yorkers—and maybe, Marilyn?—will have a chance to see Yves Montand again. After his picture, "My Geisha," with Shirley MacLaine in Japan, Yves goes to the big city to put on another one-man show. I hear he's very happy with his co-starring stint with Ingrid Bergman and Tony Perkins in "Goodbye Again."

Richard Widmark plans to meet the people with his new film, "The Secret Ways," filmed in Vienna, after his forthcoming "Judgment at Nuremberg." Dick will tour this country with his picture.

Have you noticed that nearly all the so-called heroines in the Tennessee Williams plays have one fact in common—fading beauty—from Vivien Leigh in "Streetcar Named Desire" to Geraldine Page in "Sweet Bird of Youth." There's also an aging lady in his current "Period of Adjustment."

Doris Day's trailer looks like a florist's convention—she gets so many flowers to cheer her "Lover Come Back" picture. And co-star Rock Hudson has a new trailer dressing room complete with sitting room, office, bedroom and kitchen. It's lovely to be a top star.

Irene Dunne is another Hollywood star with an apartment in New York—in the same swank East Side building where Lucille Ball lives with her two children, her mother and a poodle. Plus the servants and chauffeur she transported from Hollywood. . . . Ex-presidential nominee Tom Dewey, by the way, studied music at the same conservatory and at the same time as Miss Dunne. I sometimes forget that Irene started as a singer.

Laurence Harvey received a surprise present of golf sticks. But these were from a Texas pal, not from Mrs.

Joan Cohn who recently presented Larry with a purple Rolls-Royce. Larry practices golf between takes on the set of his "Summer and Smoke" movie at Paramount.

Helen Traubel will be singing an opera aria to end all arias, "The Fatal Love," in the new Jerry Lewis comedy, "Ladies Man." You can always tell when Helen is around by her booming laughter.

The spy fever caused by the crisis in nearby Algeria has every stranger under suspicion in Tunisia, and the mail for star Donald O'Connor, he believes, is being opened before reaching him on the set of his "Wonders of Aladdin" film.

But love cannot be dimmed by the censors, and one of O'Connor's leading ladies, Russian ballerina Anna Kuznetsov, has become engaged to Italian actor Mario Girotti, who is also in the big color spectacle. They'll be wed in London where Anna's father, who is a distant relative of the late Czar of the Russias, has lived since the 1917 revolution.

PORT RENFREW—More than 200 B.C. Forest Products loggers here have been idled this week while bridge and road crews repair flood damage.

Repairs are nearly completed on the Deering bridge, two miles north of Port Renfrew, and it is now open for foot traffic. One end section of the bridge was washed away.

Work will begin late this week on the Lens Creek bridge, seven miles east of here, completely washed away by flood waters carrying logs and debris.

Children from nearby Harris Creek were unable to attend school after washouts made some back roads impassable.

First Response 'Terrific' To Flood Relief Plea

DUNCAN—Response to the Cowichan flood relief fund was terrific as it got under way yesterday.

Although no total was available there has been "very good co-operation," said David Williams, president of the Duncan-Cowichan Chamber of Commerce, sponsors of the fund.

Largest sums promised so far were $100 each from the Cowichan Leader and Victoria Press, and $5,000 from North Cowichan.

Donations can be left at the Colonist office, 30 Kenneth, or banks in Duncan, Lake Cowichan or North Cowichan.

Nanaimo to Repeat June Shopping Mall

NANAIMO (CP)—Retail Alderman Haig Burns was named chairman of the committee which will arrange for a mall to be held June 22-24. It is anticipated more streets will be closed off this year.

Rare carvings in a Quamichan Indian big house, the oldest in the Duncan area, may be donated to the provincial museum if they are wanted, says farmer Simon Charlie. He is making his family's east end into a barn while the other end is being left to rot. (Colonist photo by Charles Thompson)

Relic Worth Fortune

Last 'Big House' Soon No More

DUNCAN—A relic worth a fortune as a link with the past is rotting and will shortly be lost as it gives way to progress.

It is the last of the old Indian big houses in this area and is estimated to be over 100 years old. One beam has carvings probably done before there was a white person in the area.

Owners of one-half are fixing their end for a barn, and the owners of the other end are letting the boards fall where they may. "I tried to buy the rest but I didn't get an answer," said Simon Charlie, a farmer in the Quamichan section of the Cowichan reserve. He has been using his end for storing hay but now will have to re-roof it because the building has become so dilapidated.

"It would be a shame to let it go," he said.

Mr. Charlie's wife's grandfather, a man named Pawhaletza, inherited it with his half-brother, a man named Harris. There were no wills and through succeeding generations one-half of the building was passed down to Mr. Charlie's wife and a son, Arvid, 14.

Mid-Leap U-Turn Takes the Cake

HONG KONG (AP)—Lee Kai San, 18, decided to commit suicide because his father would not let him taste his cousin's wedding cake before the marriage ceremony.

He jumped from the roof of a 12-storey building.

Passing the ninth floor, he reached out, grabbed a jutting iron bar, and hung on.

"After I jumped," he told firemen who finally pulled him to safety, "I thought, 'Now I will never know what the wedding cake tastes like.' So I changed my mind."

Lien May Stop Opening Of School at Cowichan

DUNCAN—School board trustee Wilf Peck. But he told the lawyer the board's counsel will be made aware of the situation, although the board does not enter into the matter because its agreement is with the general contractor, Patterson Construction Ltd. of Victoria.

"We don't want to put a lien on it unless we have to," said lawyer Tom Lines. "But we want the board to know there is the money owing."

Earlier in the meeting Feb. 1 was set for the opening of the school for regular classes of more than 200 students.

"A lien would probably prevent the opening," warned

SHELDON, Iowa (UPI) — Mrs. Burnice Geiger barred her jail door to her husband yesterday but opened it to a mystery woman believed to be the wife of a businessman in whose firm the matronly embezzler of $2,000,000 was a heavy investor.

Mrs. Geiger was taken into custody Monday for looting her father's bank.

Test-Tube Life Creators Murderers, Says Citizen

NAPLES, Italy (AP) — A private citizen has asked the Italian state prosecutor at Bologna to file a murder charge against three Italian scientists who experimented with the fertilization of human eggs in test tubes.

Antonio Mirra, 43-year-old Naples tax collector, filed a denunciation against Bologna doctors Daniele Petrucci and Raffaello Becabeo and chemist Laura de Paoli.

Petrucci and his assistants announced last week they had successfully fertilized human eggs in test tubes 40 times, but destroyed an embryo because it had become misshapen and grotesque.

Jobless Minors Get Bargain Fine

Two youths who pleaded guilty in Saanich police court yesterday to being minors in possession of liquor were fined $5 each by Magistrate William Ostler when they said they were still in school, without part-time work.

Michael Kachamowski, 18, 180 Burnside West, and Casimir Florczak, 453 Burnside East, also 18, were given time to pay their fines and urged to get jobs in order to pay themselves, rather than rely on their parents to do so.

Florczak was also fined $10 for throwing a carton of beer onto the street.

Fined $20 for the same offence (the normal fine) was David Thomas Hardy, 19, of 453 Burnside East.

Robert J. Coussins, 40 San Jose, was fined $25 plus a $10 licence fee when he admitted operating in Saanich as a chimney sweep without having the proper trades licence.

Also in Saanich court, Robert Francis Millette, serving 18 months in Oakalla on earlier charges of false pretences, appeared to wipe his slate clean by pleading guilty to three additional false-pretence charges.

The new charges involved worthless cheques passed at Burnside Pharmacy, 30 Burnside West, dated Aug. 29, 30 and 31, 1959.

That's Show Business

By Dick Williams

For many years Jimmy Durante was afraid of flying. But writer Jackie Barnett finally persuaded him to make a flight to Miami for a cafe appearance.

They boarded at New Orleans, but the Seinozola was acutely nervous. He shut his eyes as the stewardess strapped him in and didn't relax until they were moving peacefully through the sky.

"I wanna meet de aviator dat's manipulin' dis craft," he told the stewardess. He was taken forward and introduced to the pilot, Capt. Ernest Springer. For the rest of the trip Durante entertained the passengers with songs and stories over the plane's PA system.

In Miami, he said he would fly only with Springer. He wouldn't "trust a valuable property like m'self wit' any udder aviator."

They found Springer would have a flight going out the day after Jimmy closed his run.

Reservations were made but were cancelled on the day of the flight. At the last moment, piloted by Capt. Ernest Springer, the club owner persuaded Durante to stay over for an additional week.

That morning, the DC-6, piloted by Capt. Ernest Springer, left Miami and crashed a few hours later in the Gulf of Mexico.

There were no survivors.

Death Also Plays 'Cops and Robbers'

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. (CP) — Robert McLean, 9, came home from school Wednesday.

His father was in hospital after a heart attack. His mother was at work in another hospital.

Not long after that, his brother Brian, seven years old, came in from school. He found Robert lying on his back, near death from bullet wounds. If not already dead.

Shortly after, a 12-year-old boy was picked up by police walking along a Tarentorus Township road. He is being held for psychiatric examination.

At an autopsy, doctors found Robert had five bullets in his body, any one of which could have been fatal.

Police said they found five loaded firearms in the house, a shotgun, three heavy rifles and the .22 rifle that appeared to have fired the bullets into Bobby.

One report was that Robert and a companion may have been playing cops and robbers. There were barricades set up around the house, including windows and the bathroom door.

Brian ran to the home of neighbors, saying that something was wrong with Bobby. Neighbors came in by this time. Bobby's sister Shirley, 16, was home from school.

Robert, either dead or unconscious, was taken to hospital. He was dead on arrival. The hospital where they took him was where his mother was working. His father, Ernest, 38, was recovering from his heart attack a half block away in another hospital.

Sure Sign of Spring

Spring came early to Victoria yesterday. If the sunshine wasn't enough, strollers in the vicinity of the Empress Hotel were convinced by the whirr of the power mower, piloted by Ernest Koch, 711 Johnson, as gardeners kept lawns immaculate. —(Ryan Bros. photo.)

And Firemen

Merit System For Police?

If some council members have their way, pay and promotion will be linked more closely to ability in future in Victoria's police and fire forces.

This idea was put forward twice yesterday, in different forms.

MERIT SYSTEM

Echoing Mayor Scurrah's opposition to pay increases for civic employees this year and referring to the police force in particular, Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow called for a "merit" system and examinations to make sure policemen are efficient. "I can't see why the policemen or anyone else wouldn't agree with using merit as the basis for promotion or demotion," he said. "The taxpayer certainly deserves close scrutiny over costs."

He also attacked the police union's claim that it should have wage parity with the Vancouver force.

PEACEFUL SPOT

"This is a quiet and peaceful spot," he said, "and can't be compared with Vancouver any more than Vancouver can be compared with New York. If Victoria policemen want Vancouver pay, they should go to Vancouver."

Linking promotion with ability also was discussed by city fire wardens, informed by City Manager C. C. Wyatt that if promotion in senior ranks continues to be based mainly on seniority, Victoria may have seven fire chiefs in 10 years and 10 deputy chiefs, some serving for as little as three months in those positions before retirement.

DISCUSS SITUATION

Mr. Wyatt and Ald. Austin Curtis were delegated to discuss the situation with the firemen's union, but Mayor Scurrah said, "I think we must insist that ability be the first consideration."

Cyclist Hurt In Collision

An 11-year-old cyclist suffered a possible broken elbow when he collided with a car at Ida and Denman Streets yesterday.

Police said a car driven by James L. Dignan, 1725 Denman, was in collision—the bicycle ridden by Brian Hurdie, 1644 Myrtle.

The motorist took the young cyclist home and reported the incident to police.

Bennett to Lend Weight To Federal Sacred Rally

Premier W. A. C. Bennett will lend his weight to the federal Social Credit cause Feb. 15 at a public meeting to be held in Colwood Community Hall.

Cellar Blaze Hits Home

Fire which broke out in the basement caused damage estimated at from $1,000 to $1,200 to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Philip M. Monckton, 2199 Lafayette, at noon yesterday.

Oak Bay Fire Chief William Pearson said Mr. Monckton had been clearing out ashes shortly before, and it is thought a hot ash fell on some papers in the basement.

Thieves Get $14 Cheque

Thieves invaded the mail box at the home of Chris G. Toplis, 2316 Howard Street, yesterday making off with a $14 family allowance cheque.

Lunch Time at Park

Pulled In

Arm Badly Broken In Paper Baler

Songhees Re-Elect Albany

Chief John Albany has been re-elected by acclamation to a second two-year term as chief of the Songhees Indian Band. Two vacancies on the band council were filled by Richard Albany, elected for his eighth term, and Alfred George who defeated his brother Frank.

A Victoria man suffered a badly fractured arm when he was pulled into a paper-baling machine at the Hartland Road garbage dump yesterday.

In satisfactory condition at St. Joseph's Hospital is 25-year-old John Simon, 243 Kingston.

Saanich police said Simon, a city employee, had been feeding the machine and apparently overloaded it. He caught his arm when he reached in to clear away the surplus and was pulled in right up to the shoulder before the machine stopped, police said.

Council Throws Out Idea Of Larger Tax Penalty

City council finances committee yesterday rejected the idea of imposing earlier or larger penalties on overdue taxes.

Adjoining municipalities impose the penalties earlier and in amounts that add up to 10 per cent, compared with Victoria's 6 per cent, city committee said.

Color Guard to Attend Opening of Legislature

A special, 100-man royal guard carrying the Queen's Color will be provided by the 1st Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry for Lieutenant-Governor

Pearkes at the opening of the legislature Thursday. The 5th (B.C.) Independent Medium Battery, RCA, will fire a 15-gun salute marking the official opening.

Victoria's Position:

Area Health Unit Fine If Everyone Pays Same

Merger Won't Mean Change in Function

Saanich and Southern Vancouver Island Health Unit will continue to exist and function without change if the proposed integration of health services goes into effect.

Coun. Alastair Worthington, chairman of the health unit, said this last night. "The staff of the health unit will still be the Union Board's staff," he explained. "The Union Board of Health will have representation on this suggested co-ordinating committee and would endeavor to promote the same or equivalent services for the other members."

On Columbia Job

Hire Canadians Unionist Urges

A top labor official here yesterday called for a commitment by both federal and provincial governments that Canadian workers and materials will be used in development of hydro on the Columbia River.

Ald. A. W. Toone, secretary-treasurer of Victoria Labor Council, expressed concern that no such indication has yet been forthcoming. He said the issue was not covered in the treaty signed this week by Prime Minister Diefenbaker and President Eisenhower.

TIME OF NEED

"There are some 70,000 unemployed in B.C. now and as the natural resources that are to be developed belong to the people of the province—it is the people of B.C. who should be the prime consideration at this time of need," said Ald. Toone.

He said there is bound to be a certain amount of liaison between Canada and the U.S. on the international project at the administrative and technical level.

AILING INDUSTRIES

General contractors and tradesmen employed on the job, however, should be all-Canadian, said Ald. Toone. He added a further stipulation that only Canadian materials are used in construction of the power dams would assist ailing industries here and elsewhere in Canada.

As an example of an industry that could be helped immeasurably, he cited the cement works at Bamberton.

"The primary need in our economy is to put the construction tradesmen back to work—then see the lift that will come to the whole province," said Ald. Toone.

Cleaver Case

Chinese Remanded By Court

A young Chinese was remanded for psychiatric examination when he appeared in city police court yesterday following an attack with a meat cleaver on a fellow Chinese.

Joe Yin Kee, who registered Wednesday at a Store Street hotel, was arrested at 2.30 a.m.

yesterday by city police, and charged with assault causing actual bodily harm.

SOME DOUBT

Prosecutor T. P. O'Grady told Magistrate William Oatler there was some doubt of the man's ability to plead, and asked for the remand to today, to have the examination.

Police had been called at 6 p.m. Wednesday to a meat store at 554 Flagard, to take an injured man to hospital.

They found Tim Sam, 26, of that address, with his wrist severely cut, and took him to St. Joseph's Hospital.

City council is ready to accept establishment of a metropolitan health unit for the whole area from Salt Spring to Sooke but, aldermen indicated yesterday, is also ready to fight against Victorians having to pay five times as much as Saanich residents for service.

The plan, formally announced yesterday by the provincial health department, "is another example of amalgamation without amalgamation, giving the outside areas the benefits without the obligations," declared Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow.

SAME UNIT

"It's to our advantage to join," said Ald. Austin Curtis, "but if we are in the same unit, I think we should press for similar consideration in costs."

"I don't know why the people of Victoria shouldn't be treated the same as the people of Saanich when they are in the same unit."

SHARP INCREASE

Reeve George Watterson of Saanich, on the other hand, while approving the plan in principle, said he would not approve of it if it meant a sharp increase in costs.

The area now has three health services: the Victoria-Esquimalt health unit, the Oak Bay service, and the provincially-operated Saanich and South Vancouver Island health unit.

HIGH STANDARD

The plan announced yesterday will, if approved by the councils and school boards affected and the provincial legislature, bring them together in a metropolitan organization to overcome overlapping and duplication and provide a high standard of service throughout the area.

It was worked out by municipal, school board and provincial representatives in months of secret meetings, apparently to the satisfaction of all, and city council recently approved it in principle—also in secret session.

But although increased federal and provincial grants will reduce Victoria taxpayers' costs by $20,000, Mayor Percy Scurrah was critical in his inaugural address of the sharing of costs.

Health service last year cost Victoria taxpayers almost $1.60 per capita, and under the new plan, according to the estimate of the saving, would cost them about $1.25.

NET COST

Net cost of the service to Saanich taxpayers, on the other hand—expected not to change—has been 25 cents per capita.

GOOD PROPOSITION

The metropolitan plan, the mayor said, "looks like a good proposition to enter into. However, it is not an ideal agreement by any means, as at least one of the municipalities is receiving preferred treatment from the provincial government, and I think that when this agreement goes into effect, we should continue to press for equal consideration for all municipalities."

"Also, the budget should be watched very carefully, and control should never be relinquished, as it would be most undesirable to have a 'little empire' grow up, over which the council would have no control."

"We should go along with it, but we should push for parity with Saanich," Ald. Edgelow agreed yesterday. "We can see a saving in the beginning, but that's often the case, and then, pow!"

Not-So-Square Housewife Out-Figures 'Students'

WRONG COUSE: There are at least two young men in town who have been going the rounds, from door to door, selling magazine subscriptions. Their pitch is a variation of an old one.

"We are university students from Vancouver," they say, "and we're working our way through college."

This proved a little suspicious to one housewife, who figured that if they were university students they'd be doing their selling in Vancouver.

"You are students?" she asked.

"Oh yes, ma'am," they replied.

"Fine," said the housewife. "What's the square root of 36?"

There was what is sometimes described as a pregnant pause. The students scratched their crevices but to no avail. They just didn't know the answer.

They were firmly invited to leave the property, but smartly, "Incidentally the answer is 6."

LONG LEST: The provincial cabinet has completed a two-day review of legislation to be introduced at the coming session of the legislature.

"It's quite a heavy program," said Premier Bennett.

Details of the legislation will be kept secret until the Throne Speech is read Thursday afternoon by Lieutenant-Governor George E. Pearkes.

CONVERSATION STOP

A city motorcycle cop just didn't believe his ears when he pulled up a motorist the other night and asked the traditional "how fast do you think you were travelling?" question.

"I don't know," replied the driver. "I never look at my speedometer when I'm speeding."

Peter Bruton's Capital Notebook

The astounded officer asked the question again and was given the same answer.

COLOR CLASH

Premier Bennett has a new car—a green 1961 Plymouth complete with those bluish pink licence plates. It's a fascinating color combination.

The column was intrigued that the premier should choose a green car so we asked him the other day why he hadn't added the other Social Credit color by having white-wall tires.

"Hah, my friend," said the premier. "It's the cheapest Plymouth you can buy. It's a poor man's car."

He still has the government-owned Lincoln to transport him to official functions.

OUT OF REACH: Neophyte Victoria Social MLA Wade Skilling, a close confidante and bridge colleague of Premier Bennett, has finally reached the end of the line, so to speak.

A new legislative assembly seating plan has Mr. Skilling sitting as far away as possible from the premier on the government side of the House. The plan was drawn up by Mr. Speaker-elect Hugh Ramsay strictly by design—scientific design.

The list is also notable in that Saanich MLA John Tisdale's surname has been misspelled.

Mr. Speaker Shantz explained that the seating of government backbenchers was on a strict seniority basis as to their length of service in the legislature. When more than one member was elected at the same time the seating was on an alphabetical basis.

There are 31 seats on the government side of the House and 30, 16 CCFers and four Liberals, on the opposition side.

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: I am a boy 12 years old and I am having trouble with my personality. I have a feeling that I am better than most people and I'm getting a reputation for being conceited.

The big problem is I really am better and I have proved it. My grades are tops and I'm outstanding in sports. I've been playing the piano with out much effort since I was six years old. And as if this isn't enough, I'm good-looking besides.

What can I do? I think I'm getting obnoxious.—SEARCHING FOR HELP.

Dear Searching: Thank you for the most unusual letter in a long time. I will do my best to make you less obnoxious.

First: Looks are an accident of birth. You are not entitled to any credit for the way the good Lord put you together.

Second: Musical talent. If you've been playing the piano since you were six years old, you are gifted. This is another endowment for which you can't take credit.

Third: Top grades and athletic ability took some effort on your part. Congratulations. But keep in mind that no matter how handsome and accomplished you are, somewhere there is someone who is just as handsome and accomplished, and not conceited, which makes him a lot better than you—in important ways. See?

Dear Ann Landers: My husband and I are planning a 10-day vacation with our son and daughter-in-law. They were married 18 months ago and this is our first visit. We want to do the right thing.

Our son has a good-paying job but we know they are having a financial struggle. My husband feels we should pay part of the grocery bill when we are guests in their home. I'm uncomfortable about this and think perhaps they might be insulted. Also, should I help with the housework and cooking? Please give us some advice. We are eager to be GOOD IN-LAWS.

Dear Good: Don't offer to pay part of the grocery bill on a 10-day visit. If you stayed three months it might be different. You could stop at the market, however, and pick up four choice steaks and a couple of fryers. And it would be nice to take THEM out to dinner one night.

Guests always keep their room in order and are careful not to make extra work for the hostess. As for helping with the cooking and house cleaning it depends on the daughter-in-law. Some appreciate the lift, others resent it. Ask.

Dear Ann Landers: This is for the woman whose husband is a considerate, loving, a wonderful father and loyal companion, but a man who "never quite made it" financially. My husband is a big success if you look at his bank account, my clothes closet, our club memberships, and the cars in our driveway. But to me he's a failure. He wants no responsibility as a father or husband. When I ask for his advice, he says, "You've got plenty of money. Do as you please."

His business associates and our social friends would be shocked if they knew how little he cared about his family and home. I hope all successful men aren't like this but I'm terribly suspicious. Some of my women friends have the same sad look I have—and they never say anything either.—EXECUTIVE'S WIFE.

Dear Wife: Your husband sounds like a platinum-plated egomaniac. These birds require special treatment. Have you tried your damndest?

Courier Swallowed Gem

By PATRICIA McORMACK
NEW YORK (UPI) — Diamonds — a girl's best friend — have sparked thievery, murder and even political crisis. Consider thievery. One legendary diamond of 137 carats has been missing since 1918. Called the Florentine, it was the chief treasure of the Medici family of Italy.

Light greenish-yellow in hue, the sparkler was sent to Austria in the time of Queen Maria Theresa to be placed in the Austrian Crown.

INTO EXILE

When emperor Charles was deposed from the throne in 1918, the great stone went into exile with him. Its whereabouts have been shrouded in silence ever since.

Once another famed gem — 88 carats — saved Persia from war with Russia. The diamond, owned by the Shah of Persia, was kept in the Persian treasury.

It was hauled out of the safe in 1989 when the Russian ambassador to Persia was killed by a street mob. To keep the Czar from declaring war, the Persians gave him the gem. The jewel now is under lock and key in the Kremlin.

The historical facts about diamonds influencing more than heart throbs are contained in a report from the Elgin Institute of Timekeeping Researchers found that many stones had adventurous histories.

The famous Sancy diamond once was swallowed on purpose. First purchased by the French nobleman De Sancy in 1530, the gem was presented to King Henry III of France.

A royal courier, entrusted with its safe delivery, was attacked by thieves and swallowed the carat stone.

The thieves killed the messenger, but a surgeon removed the gem from the stomach of his corpse.

It was later owned by Queen Elizabeth of England. Once King Louis XIV of France had the gem in his collection of crown jewels.

Now the Sancy diamond rests in the United States owned by Vincent Astor.

A long and pleasurable association with St. Alban's Anglican Church was closed recently when the Senior Ladies' Guild met for their final meeting at the home of Mrs. Frank Hawes, Belmont Street.

The organization, originally known as the Ladies' Society, was the first to be started within St. Alban's, and has been active ever since 1924. Mrs. M. Chapple, a former president, and Mrs. Hawes, treasurer for more than twenty-five years, are both life members.

Rev. P. W. Hayes, Rector of St. Alban's, was present, and thanked the members for their contributions of work and money during the years, and regretted that illnesses and years that eventually "catch up with us" made it seem advisable to disband.

Tea was served, during which Mrs. Hawes was presented with a gift, honoring her long and faithful service as treasurer and convener of the work stall for the bazaars.

Tyro Financier Accused of Bilking Wall Street Experts of $1,327,000

DAVID PRATT

NEW YORK (AP)—A former liquor store clerk, who set himself up as a big financier, was accused yesterday of fleeing seven victims — including Wall Streeters — of $1,327,431.

Arrested Wednesday on a 58-count grand jury indictment was Handsome Morton Carlin, 39.

District attorney Frank S. Hogan said the operation was "one of the most complex and intricate financial investigations in the experience of this office."

The district attorney said victims included Jerry Finkelstein, former chairman of the city planning commission — of $343,763.

The public relations firm of Tex McCrary, Inc., of which Finkelstein is chairman of the board, lost $71,200, Hogan added.

The district attorney said Carlin spread the word that he had $3,000,000 he wished to put to work.

During a six-month period ending last April, Hogan continued, Carlin advanced loans to victims, generally at seven per cent interest, for stock, they posted as collateral. Carlin then used the stock to obtain loans for himself.

Hogan said Carlin made poor investments in the market as well as in real estate and finally wound up broke.

Well-dressed but tired-looking, Carlin surrendered Wednesday and was released in $5,000 bail. No date was set for trial.

If convicted, he faces sentences totalling 580 years in prison.

Frenzied Washington Paralyzed by Snow

Snow blankets capitol on inauguration eve.

Kennedy Held Up

WASHINGTON (UPI)—John F. Kennedy takes the oath as the nation's 35th president today in a capital city all but paralyzed by a driving snowstorm that wrecked some inaugural eve festivities and disrupted the plans of two ex-presidents.

The frenzied capital, jammed with visitors for the inaugural, was thoroughly fouled up. Kennedy and his wife, Jacqueline, were forced to cancel several scheduled events when they could not make their way through snow-covered streets.

COLD FORECAST

For the noon swearing-in on Capitol Hill today, the weatherman predicted "windy and cold with variable cloudiness and a high near 32 degrees." During the night the temperature dropped to the low 20s.

Perhaps hardest hit by the storm was former president Herbert Hoover. He was flown in an Air Force transport from Miami, Fla., to Washington, but the plane was unable to land in the capital and Hoover decided to return to Florida.

PLACE OF HONOR

He had been scheduled for a special place of honor in the inaugural ceremonies, along with the nation's other two ex-presidents, Harry S. Truman and Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Truman also suffered. After visiting Kennedy at his home in the late afternoon, the democratic ex-president took a look at the weather and decided to forego the inaugural concert. Friends said Mrs. Truman insisted.

Until late in the day, Kennedy all but ignored the storm as he plowed through a crowded schedule, but as snow piled up on city streets, snarling traffic and marooning thousands, Kennedy was forced to cancel an appearance at two parties.

GETS TO CONCERT

With hurried secret service men and local police doing their best to clear the way, he did make it to a reception for state governors and then, with his wife, moved on to Constitution Hall for the special inaugural concert where half the seats for the sell-out performance were vacant.

Many people, especially those coming in from the south, were stranded as far away as Richmond, Va.

Another Murder In Montreal

MONTREAL (UPI)—Tavern owner Emile Chapelle was shot to death last night in a fresh outbreak of violence in the city's two-year crime wave. His bulging wallet was untouched, ruling out robbery as a motive.

Firemen work in a blinding snow and exploded while taking off in New York.

102 SURVIVE AIR CRASH

Four Bodies Found

NEW YORK (AP) — A Mexican DC-8B jet airliner crashed on takeoff from Idlewild Airport in a snowstorm Thursday night. Police said they believe 102 of the 106 persons aboard managed to escape moments before the plane burned.

Frank Robb, chief of detectives, said, "We've found only four bodies and that looks like it."

AT LEAST 26

At least 26 of the survivors suffered injuries and were taken to hospital.

The $3,000,000 plane, bound for Mexico City, crashed through an airport fence and two light poles and hit an automobile.

Some survivors struggled back to the airport, some went directly home.

HEARD CRIES

One policeman heard cries coming from the flaming fuselage, but could not get near the plane because of the heat.

The plane crossed a road and came to a halt in a marsh about three miles northeast of Idlewild's main terminal.

SAW CRASH

Daniel Herbst, 36, witnessed the crash from behind the wheel of his automobile.

"I heard a noise and stuck my head out. I saw this airplane right at the edge of the Idlewild fence from my right, going right across in front of me," said Herbst.

He said the plane was flaming prior to hitting a marsh.

AWFUL LOT

"But it looked like everybody got out," Herbst said. "There were an awful lot of them. They were running across the marsh through the snow. Some had no shoes and some were in shirt-tails."

Archie, who hitch-hiked to his home nearby, said at least 20 persons walked away from the plane with him.

"All of a sudden, I heard what seemed like a bump. It didn't sound normal to me. I told my wife, 'Put your head between your legs. I think we're going to crack up.'"

"The plane continued rolling. Then flames began to surround us on both sides."

CRACKED UP

"The plane cracked up on Rockaway Boulevard. We ran out and were about 50 yards from the plane. Then it blew up."

Medical Aid Halts To Many Jobless

By PETER BRUTON

Provincial government has stopped paying medical, dental and optical benefits to B.C.'s employable unemployed.

Welfare Minister Wesley D. Black said yesterday morning that the government decided to stop future benefits because Ottawa had consistently refused to share the costs.

NOT AFFECTED

Medical benefits provided by the government for elderly citizens receiving supplementary social allowances and for persons on social allowance who are classified as unemployable will not be affected by the order.

In addition, those employable unemployed who are already eligible for benefits will not be denied them. The new order only applies to those who may lose their jobs after today.

BASIC NEEDS

The policy of the provincial government is to meet the basic financial needs of the temporary unemployed person, but without federal government participation. It is considered that the provincial government should not assume the full responsibility for health service costs also," said Mr. Black.

The majority of those affected will be persons who are receiving unemployment insurance," he said.

ON RELIEF

Under the existing system medical benefits have been paid to employable unemployed after they have been on relief for three months or longer.

However, medical expenses incurred during this three-month period could subsequently be claimed by submitting receipts and asking for a rebate from the government.

The benefits covered all medical expenses such as the cost of doctors' fees and drugs, dental treatment, and fees for eyeglasses.

COSTS SOARED

It is understood costs of providing such benefits soared in recent months.

Mr. Black said frequent requests had been made to Ottawa to share the cost of providing medical benefits but the federal government had refused "all down the line."

Russia Hungry For Wheat Deal

OTTAWA (CP) — A Russian purchase of Canadian wheat is being negotiated, commercial councillor Alexander Lobachev of the Soviet embassy said Thursday night.

The deal is being handled by Moscow, he said, and he was unable to confirm reports that the purchase through private grain interests might run around 150,000 tons or 5,500,000 bushels.

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Russia admitted Thursday that it is not producing enough food and needs a thorough overhaul of its agriculture ministry.

The Communist party ruled that the task is to "make the output of farm products always exceed the population's demand."

Plutonium Missing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The defence department disclosed yesterday that a small amount of plutonium, a radioactive material used in one of the first atomic bombs, is missing from the naval research laboratory in southeast Washington.

Mr. Black said frequent requests had been made to Ottawa to share the cost of providing medical benefits but the federal government had refused "all down the line."

Belgians Threaten To Invade Congo

ELISABETHVILLE, Congo (UPI) — Belgian troops have threatened to invade Kivu and Oriental provinces of the Congo to save threatened Europeans unless the United Nations guarantees their safety. Informal sources said last night.

The European sources reported that Belgium has stationed two battalions of troops along the borders of Ruanda-Urundi, the UN trusteeship it administers, across the borders from the two provinces where Europeans have been endangered by warring tribesmen.

Information reaching Elisabethville said the Belgians are armed with 10 rocket-firing jeeps in addition to their normal weapons and that two transport planes are standing by to fly out Europeans.

In the Kivu provincial capital of Bukavu recently there has been a series of savage beatings of Europeans. Congolese troops have sealed off the border so the Europeans cannot flee into Ruanda-Urundi.

The entire border situation,

Indonesian forces have persuaded the Congolese troops to draw back from the border and that negotiations are under way to get the Belgians to withdraw.

Lights Cut By Squirrel

TERREBE, B.C. (CP) — A squirrel blacked out this northern community for a time.

The British Columbia Power Commission said a dead squirrel was found at the base of a power pole.

It figures that the animal was sitting on top of a power transformer and hit a high-power lead with his tail, short-circuiting the system.

Only Expropriation Can Open Road to Public Says Williston

Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston said yesterday that nothing short of expropriation could open up a 51-mile logging road from Campbell River to Metchosin for public travel.

"This is different from a road on Crown-owned land," he said. "This is Crown-granted land and there's little the government can do unless we expropriate."

Comox Social Credit M.L.A.

Don Campbell charged earlier in the week that the Elk River Timber Company, by keeping the Gold River road to the west coast of Vancouver Island barred to the general public, was "making the government and the people look stupid."

He said even game wardens have a difficult time getting into the area.

REPEATED TRIES

Mr. Williston said yesterday that the government had made repeated representations to the Elk River company but the firm continued to place "rather severe restrictions" on the road's use.

"If it is decided that this is the only road route up the west coast I expect some action will have to be considered by the government,"

said the minister. "But right now, under this Crown-grant situation, the company is in the same position as you would be if the public drove across your lawn or through your driveway."

NO SMOOKING

Mr. Williston said the only result of government representations to the company was that permission was given to a Coach Lines bus service along the road. Passengers are forbidden to smoke, no matter what the season may be.

"It's the most difficult situation of any concerning access to logging roads," said the minister. "Unless we expropriate the whole road for public purposes it is unlikely we can secure the control necessary."

ALBERNI — An elderly woman was killed and five persons injured, two seriously, in a head-on car-truck collision on icy roads five miles east of here last night.

Dead is Mrs. Isabella Auld, 72, of Port Alberni, a passenger in the car which was demolished.

Three other occupants of the car, Mrs. J. Ewen, Mrs. I. Haigs and Mrs. J. Colle, all of Port Alberni, were taken to Port Alberni General Hospital along with truck driver B. Loukes and his wife, both of Alberni Valley.

Queen Sadly Tucks Tots Into Bed

LONDON (Reuters) — Queen Elizabeth sadly watched her two youngest children being tucked in their beds on the eve of a six-week separation from their world-travelling mother.

Friday at 12:45 p.m. local time the Queen and Prince Philip will leave London airport for New Delhi to start a 20,000-mile tour of India, Pakistan, Nepal and Iran. They are due in New Delhi

Saturday. It will be the first royal visit to India in 50 years.

The flight will mark the 12th time in almost nine years on the throne that the Queen has been separated from her children by an overseas tour.

This time she and Prince Philip will be away for the first birthday of Prince Andrew, Feb. 19. They are due back in London March 6 after bringing to 50 the number of countries and colonies they have visited either together or separately since the Queen's reign began in February, 1952. None of the Queen's previous foreign trips — which have occupied nine months of her reign — have clashed with any of the children's birthdays.

Old Pro Shows Off At a Tee Party

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. — Dapper Jimmy Demaret, practising for the Bing Crosby golf tournament, called his host while his host was watching. Playing in a foursome which included Crosby and Phil Harris, Demaret was just stepping up to the tee on the 155-yard seventh hole when pros Jackie Burke and Jug McSpaden came by.

"How are you doing," McSpaden asked.

"Pretty good," Demaret replied, "just watch this one."

Then he swung his No. 5 iron, and the ball dropped into the cup for a hole-in-one.

PORT RENFREW—More than 200 B.C. Forest Products loggers here have been idled this week while bridge and road crews repair flood damage.

Repairs are nearly completed on the Deering bridge, two miles north of Port Renfrew, and it is now open for foot traffic. One end section of the bridge was washed away.

Work will begin late this week on the Lena Creek bridge, seven miles east of here, completely washed away by flood waters carrying logs and debris.

Children from nearby Harris Creek were unable to attend school after washouts made some back roads impassable.

First Response 'Terrific'
To Flood Relief Plea

DUNCAN—Response to the Cowichan flood relief fund was terrific as it got under way yesterday.

Although no total was available there has been "very good co-operation," said David Williams, president of the Duncan-Cowichan Chamber of Commerce, sponsors of the fund.

Largest sums promised so far were $100 each from the Cowichan Leader and Victoria Press, and $5,000 from North Cowichan.

Donations can be left at the Colonist office, 30 Kenneth, or banks in Duncan, Lake Cowichan or North Cowichan.

Nanaimo to Repeat
June Shopping Mall

NANAIMO (CP)—Retail Alderman Haig Burns was named chairman of the committee which will arrange for a mall to be held June 22-24. It is anticipated more streets will be closed off this year.

Rare carvings in a Quamichan Indian big house, the oldest in the Duncan area, may be donated to the provincial museum if they are wanted, says farmer Simon Charlie. He is making his family's east end into a barn while the other end is being left to rot.—(Colonist photo by Charles Thompson)

Relic Worth Fortune

Last 'Big House'
Soon No More

DUNCAN—A relic worth a fortune as a link with the past is rotting and will shortly be lost as it gives way to progress.

It is the last of the old Indian big houses in this area and is estimated to be over 100 years old. One beam has carvings probably done before there was a white person in the area.

Owners of one-half are fixing their end for a barn, and the owners of the other end are letting the boards fall where they may.

"I tried to buy the rest but I didn't get an answer," said

Simon Charlie, a farmer in the Quamichan section of the Cowichan reserve. He has been using his end for storing hay but now will have to re-roof it because the building has become so dilapidated.

"It would be a shame to let it go," he said.

Mr. Charlie's wife's grandfather, a man named Pawhale, inherited it with his half-brother, a man named Harris. There were no wills and through succeeding generations one-half of the building was passed down to Mr. Charlie's wife and a son, Arvid, 14.

Cowichan Warned

Lien May Prevent
Opening of School

DUNCAN—School board last night was warned by a lawyer that there is "an argument" between his clients and the general contractor of Mount Prevost junior high school.

"We don't want to put a lien on it unless we have to," said lawyer Tom Lines. "But we want the board to know there is the money owing."

Earlier in the meeting Feb. 1 was set for the opening of the school for regular classes of more than 200 students.

PREVENT OPENING
"A lien would probably prevent the opening," warned trustee Wilf Peck. But he told the lawyer the board's counsel will be made aware of the situation, although the board does not enter into the matter because its agreement is with the general contractor, Patterson Construction Ltd. of Victoria.

Mr. Lines said he is acting for Kennedy Bros., a North Vancouver painting firm, which billed the contractor in December for $4,537 and received $2,000.

The board postponed opening tenders for construction of a $200,000 junior high school without giving a reason, but indicated flooding in the area was a factor.

"We couldn't even get a truck near the place," said trustee Mrs. Isabel Tarlton, board chairman. The school is scheduled to be built west of Alexander elementary, near Somers Creek which overflowed into the Wall Subdivision Sunday.

SPECIAL MEETING
Opening of tenders is to take place at a special meeting next Thursday, over the protests of trustees Peck and J. S. C. Fraser that work should start immediately.

Trustee Stan Holgate proposed the postponement pending discussions with city and North Cowichan councils Monday.

NANAIMO—Students attending Nanaimo Senior High School may soon be able to take a good look at years gone by just by walking a few steps in their own building.

The Nanaimo branch of the B.C. Historical Society has offered to have a collection of historical documents displayed at the high school if a place can be found for them.

The display would include photographs and reports of many pioneers of this area whose names are linked with political, commercial, athletic and community life of the district.

The school would hold the collection until some museum or archives is set up in Nanaimo.

Victoria Youth Jailed
On Charges in Nanaimo

NANAIMO (CP)—Two Victoria youths were sentenced to terms Thursday on six charges of breaking and entering in Nanaimo and Duncan.

Allan Hardy Lane, 19, was sentenced to two years and Ronald Harold Beckley, 20, two years less a day in Oakalla Prison Farm's young offenders' unit.

NANAIMO—Students attending Nanaimo Senior High School may soon be able to take a good look at years gone by just by walking a few steps in their own building.

The Nanaimo branch of the B.C. Historical Society has offered to have a collection of historical documents displayed at the high school if a place can be found for them.

The display would include photographs and reports of many pioneers of this area whose names are linked with political, commercial, athletic and community life of the district.

The school would hold the collection until some museum or archives is set up in Nanaimo.

Anti-Pollution Action Taken

NORTH COWICHAN—Overall pollution in the Wall subdivision was slight because of the volume of flood water, health officials decided yesterday after a visit to the area.

Residents can go back as soon as water drops below the floor level of homes, but health officer Dr. C. J. G. Mackenzie called for strict health measures and for residents to keep out of the water.

Reeve Donald Morton said he is "relieved" by the report and stated works crews will sprinkle chloride of lime on all isolated pools of stagnant water, as suggested by the doctor in a special report.

The report also states that children should be "controlled" if there is surface water and that all inside areas touched by water should be scrubbed with a hot water and soap solution and disinfected.

Out side surfaces should be hosed down and adult clothing that comes in contact with flood waters should be hung out of reach of children.

The Junior Chamber of Commerce has agreed to sponsor the event and co-ordinate activities. It has asked that every group, club, lodge, organization and individual in the Greater Nanaimo area back the return of the Empire Day weekend and attend a meeting at city hall Wednesday evening to take the initial organizational steps.

Central Vancouver Island Health Unit director Dr. C. J. Mackenzie reported he had carried out tests on all but 100 of the school's pupils.

He also asked for directions concerning testing of the entire school district personnel and recommended such a test every three years.

Mr. Harrison was born in England and came to Canada 55 years ago. In 1914 he joined the 78th Winnipeg Grenadiers. After the war he became a charter member of the Legion at Burnaby, B.C.

Council Throws Out Idea Of Larger Tax Penalty

City council finance committee yesterday rejected the idea of imposing earlier or larger penalties on overdue taxes.

In satisfactory condition at St. Joseph's Hospital is 25-year-old John Simon, 243 Kingston.

Saanich police said Simon, a city employee, had been feeding the machine and apparently overloaded it. He caught his arm when he reached in to clear away the surplus and was pulled in right up to the shoulder before the machine stopped, police said.

Victoria's Position:

Area Health Unit Fine If Everyone Pays Same

Merger Won't Mean Change in Function

Saanich and Southern Vancouver Island Health Unit will continue to exist and function without change if the proposed integration of health services goes into effect.

Coun. Alastair Worthington, chairman of the health unit, said this last night. "The staff of the health unit will still be the Union Board's staff," he explained. "The Union Board of Health will have representation on this suggested co-ordinating committee and would endeavor to promote the same or equivalent services for the other members."

On Columbia Job

Hire Canadians Unionist Urges

A top labor official here yesterday called for a commitment by both federal and provincial governments that Canadian workers and materials will be used in development of hydro on the Columbia River.

Ald. A. W. Toone, secretary-treasurer of Victoria Labor Council, expressed concern that no such indication has yet been forthcoming. He said the issue was not covered in the treaty signed this week by Prime Minister Diefenbaker and President Eisenhower.

TIME OF NEED

"There are some 70,000 unemployed in B.C. now and as the natural resources that are to be developed belong to the people of the province—it is the people of B.C. who should be the prime consideration at this time of need," said Ald. Toone.

He said there is bound to be a certain amount of liaison between Canada and the U.S. on the international project at the administrative and technical level.

AILING INDUSTRIES

General contractors and tradesmen employed on the job, however, should be all Canadian, said Ald. Toone. He added a further stipulation that only Canadian materials are used in construction of the power dams would assist ailing industries here and elsewhere in Canada.

As an example of an industry that could be helped immeasurably, he cited the cement works at Bamberton.

"The primary need in our economy is to put the construction tradesmen back to work—then see the lift that will come to the whole province," said Ald. Toone.

City council is ready to accept establishment of a metropolitan health unit for the whole area from Salt Spring to Sooke but, aldermen indicated yesterday, is also ready to fight against Victorians having to pay five times as much as Saanich residents for service.

The plan, formally announced yesterday by the provincial health department, "is another example of amalgamation without amalgamation, giving the outside areas the benefits without the obligations," declared Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow.

SAME UNIT

"It's to our advantage to join," said Ald. Austin Curtis, "but if we are in the same unit, I think we should press for similar consideration in costs."

"I don't know why the people of Victoria shouldn't be treated the same as the people of Saanich when they are in the same unit."

SHARP INCREASE

Reeve George Chatterton of Saanich, on the other hand, while approving the plan in principle, said he would not approve of it if it meant a sharp increase in costs.

The area now has three health services: the Victoria-Esquimalt health unit, the Oak Bay service, and the provincially-operated Saanich and South Vancouver Island health unit.

HIGH STANDARD

The plan announced yesterday will, if approved by the councils and school boards affected and the provincial legislature, bring them together in a metropolitan organization to overcome overlapping and duplication and provide a high standard of service throughout the area.

It was worked out by municipal, school board and provincial representatives in months of secret meetings, apparently to the satisfaction of all, and city council recently approved it in principle—also in secret session.

But although increased federal and provincial grants will reduce Victoria taxpayers' costs by $20,000, Mayor Percy Scourrah was critical in his inaugural address of the sharing of costs.

Health service last year cost Victoria taxpayers almost $1.60 per capita, and under the new plan, according to the estimate of the saving, would cost them about $1.25.

NET COST

Net cost of the service to Saanich taxpayers, on the other hand—expected not to change—has been 25 cents per capita.

GOOD PROPOSITION

The metropolitan plan, the mayor said, "looks like a good proposition to enter into. However, it is not an ideal agreement by any means, as at least one of the municipalities is receiving preferred treatment from the provincial government, and I think that when this agreement goes into effect, we should continue to press for equal consideration for all municipalities."

"Also, the budget should be watched very carefully, and control should never be relinquished, as it would be most undesirable to have a 'little empire' grow up, over which the council would have no control."

"We should go along with it, but we should push for parity with Saanich," Ald. Edgelow agreed yesterday. "We can see a saving in the beginning, but that's often the case, and then, pow!"

Not-So-Square Housewife Out-Figures 'Students'

WRONG COURSE: There are at least two young men in town who have been going the rounds, from door to door, selling magazine subscriptions. Their pitch is a variation of an old one.

"We are university students from Vancouver," they say, "and we're working our way through college."

This proved a little suspicious to one housewife, who figured that if they were university students they'd be doing their selling in Vancouver.

"You are students?" she asked.

"Oh yes, ma'am," they replied.

"Fine," said the housewife. "What's the square root of 36?"

There was what is sometimes described as a pregnant pause. The students scratched their crests but to no avail. They just didn't know the answer.

They were firmly invited to leave the property, but, amazingly,

Peter Bruton's Capital Notebook

LONG LINT: The provincial cabinet has completed a two-day review of legislation to be introduced at the coming session of the legislature.

"It's quite a heavy program," said Premier Bennett.

Details of the legislation will be kept secret until the Throne Speech is read Thursday afternoon by Lieutenant-Governor George E. Pearkes.

CONVERSATION STOPPER

A city motorcycle cop just didn't believe his ears when he pulled up a motorist the other night and asked the traditional "how fast do you think you were travelling" question.

"I don't know," replied the driver. "I never look at my speedometer when I'm speeding."

The astounded officer asked the question again and was given the same answer.

COLOR CLASH

Premier Bennett has a new car—a green 1961 Plymouth complete with those bluish pink licence plates. It's a fascinating color combination.

The column was intrigued that the premier should choose a green car so we asked him the other day why he hadn't added the other Social Credit color by having white-wall tires.

"Hah, my friend," said the premier. "It's the cheapest Plymouth you can buy. It's a poor man's car."

He still has the government-owned Lincoln to transport him to official functions.

OUT OF REACH: Neophytos Victoria Scored MLA Waldo Skilling, a close confidante and bridge colleague of Premier Bennett, has finally reached the end of the line, so to speak.

A new legislative assembly seating plan has Mr. Skilling sitting as far away as possible from the premier on the government side of the House. The plan was drawn up by Mr. Speaker-elect Hugh Ramsay strictly by design—scientific design.

The list is also notable in that Saanich MLA John Tisdale's surname has been misspelled.

Mr. Speaker Shantz explained that the seating of government backbenchers was on a strict seniority basis as to their length of service in the legislature. When more than one member was elected at the same time the seating was on an alphabetical basis.

There are 31 seats on the government side of the House and 20, 16 CCFers and four Liberals, on the opposition side.

Snow blankets capitol on inauguration eve.

Snow Clogs Capital

WASHINGTON (UPI)—John F. Kennedy takes the oath as the nation's 35th president today in a capital city all but paralyzed by a driving snowstorm that wrecked some inaugural eve festivities and disrupted the plans of two ex-presidents.

The frenzied capital, jammed with visitors for the inaugural, was thoroughly fouled up. Kennedy and his wife, Jacqueline, were forced to cancel several scheduled events when they could not make their way through snow-covered streets.

For the noon swearing-in on Capitol Hill today, the weatherman predicted "windy and cold with variable cloudiness and a high near 32 degrees." During the night the temperature dropped to the low 20s.

Perhaps hardest hit by the storm was former president Herbert Hoover. He was flown in an Air Force transport from Miami, Fla., to Washington, but the plane was unable to land in the capital and Hoover decided to return to Florida.

He had been scheduled for a special place of honor in the inaugural ceremonies, along with the nation's other two ex-presidents, Harry S. Truman and Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Truman also suffered. After visiting Kennedy at his home in the late afternoon, the Democratic ex-president took a look at the weather and decided to forego the inaugural concert. Friends said Mrs. Truman insisted.

Until late in the day, Kennedy all but ignored the storm as he plowed through a crowded schedule, but as snow piled up on city streets, snarling traffic and marooning thousands, Kennedy was forced to cancel an appearance at two parties.

Firemen work in a blinding snow storm to fight flames belching from a Mexican airliner after it crashed and exploded while taking off in New York. Of 106 persons aboard 102 are believed to have survived.

Four Bodies Found

NEW YORK (AP) — A Mexican DC-8B jet airliner crashed on takeoff from Idlewild Airport in a snowstorm Thursday night. Police said they believe 102 of the 106 persons aboard managed to escape moments before the plane burned.

Frank Robb, chief of detectives, said, "We've found only four bodies and that looks like it."

AT LEAST 26

At least 26 of the survivors suffered injuries and were taken to hospital.

The $5,000,000 plane, bound for Mexico City, crashed through an airport fence and two light poles and hit an automobile.

Some survivors struggled back to the airport, some went directly home.

HEARD CRIES

One policeman heard cries coming from the flaming fuselage, but could not get near the plane because of the heat.

The plane crossed a road and came to a halt in a marsh about three miles northeast of Idlewild's main terminal.

RAW CRIES

Daniel Herbst, 36, witnessed the crash from behind the wheel of his automobile.

"I heard a noise and stuck my head out. I saw this airplane right at the edge of the Idlewild fence from my right, going right across in front of me," said Herbst.

He said the plane was flaming prior to hitting a marsh.

AWFUL LOT

"But it looked like everybody got out," Herbst said. "There were an awful lot of them. They were running across the marsh through the snow. Some had no shoes and some were in shirt sleeves."

Archie Rosenberg, who hitchhiked to his home nearby, said at least 20 persons walked away from the plane with him.

"All of a sudden I heard what seemed like a bump. I told my wife, 'Put your head between your legs. I think we're going to crack up.'"

"The plane continued rolling. Then flames began to surround us on both sides."

CRACKED UP

"The plane cracked up" on Rockaway Boulevard. We ran out and were about 50 yards from the plane. Then it blew up."

Medical Aid Halts To Many Jobless

By PETER BRUTON

Provincial government has stopped paying medical, dental and optical benefits to B.C.'s employable unemployed.

Welfare Minister Wesley D. Black said yesterday morning that the government decided to stop future benefits because Ottawa had consistently refused to share the costs.

NOT AFFECTED

Medical benefits provided by the government for elderly citizens receiving supplementary social allowances and for persons on social allowance rolls who are classified as unemployable will not be affected by the order.

In addition, those employable unemployed who are already eligible for benefits will not be denied them. The new order only applies to those who may lose their jobs after today.

BASIC NEEDS

"The policy of the provincial government is to meet the basic financial needs of the temporary unemployed person, but without federal government participation, it is considered that the provincial government should not assume the full responsibility for health service costs also," said Mr. Black.

The majority of those affected will be persons who are receiving unemployment insurance, he said.

ON RELIEF

Under the existing system medical benefits have been paid to employable unemployed after they have been on relief for three months or longer.

However, medical expenses incurred during this three-month period could subsequently be claimed by submitting receipts and asking for a rebate from the government.

The benefits covered all medical expenses such as the cost of doctors' fees and drugs, dental treatment, and fees for eyeglasses.

COSTS NOARED

It is understood costs of providing such benefits soared in recent months.

Mr. Black said frequent requests had been made to Ottawa to share the costs.

'Noah's Ark' May Mean Survival

DALLAS, Tex. (UPI)—A General Electric scientist believes that man's survival in the event of nuclear war may depend upon a modern-day version of "Noah's Ark" which could spend weeks, months or even years underground or sea.

Dandridge M. Cole said he is surprised that construction hasn't already begun.

Russia Hungry For Wheat Deal

OTTAWA (CP) — A Russian purchase of Canadian wheat is being negotiated, commercial counsellor Alexander Lobachev of the Soviet embassy said Thursday night.

The deal is being handled by Moscow, he said, and he was unable to confirm reports that the purchase through private grain interests might run around 150,000 tons or 5,500,000 bushels.

MOSCOW (Reuters) — Russia admitted Thursday that it is not producing enough food and needs a thorough overhaul of its agriculture ministry.

The Communist party ruled that the task is to "make the output of farm products always exceed the population's demand."

Plutonium Missing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The defence department disclosed yesterday that a small amount of plutonium, a radioactive material used in one of the first atomic bombs, is missing from the naval research laboratory in southeast Washington.

Old Pro Shows Off At a Tee Party

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. — Dapper Jimmy Demaret, practising for the Bing Crosby golf tournament, called his shot while his host was watching. Playing in a foursome which included Crosby and Phil Harris, Demaret was just stepping up to the tee on the 165-yard seventh hole when pros Jackie Burke and Jug McSpaden came by.

"How are you doing," McSpaden asked.

"Pretty good," Demaret replied, "just watch this one."

Then he swung his No. 5 iron, and the ball dropped into the cup for a hole-in-one.

Belgians Threaten To Invade Congo

ELISABETHVILLE, Congo (UPI) — Belgian troops have threatened to invade Kivu and Oriental provinces of the Congo to save threatened Europeans unless the United Nations guarantees their safety. Informal sources said last night.

The European sources reported that Belgium has stationed two battalions of troops along the borders of Ruanda-Urundi, the UN trusteeship it administers, across the borders from the two provinces where Europeans have been endangered by warring tribesmen.

Information reaching Elisabethville said the Belgians are armed with 10 rocket-firing jeeps in addition to their normal weapons and that two transport planes are standing by to fly out Europeans.

In the Kivu provincial capital of Bukavu recently there has been a series of savage beatings of Europeans. Congolese troops have sealed off the border so the Europeans cannot flee into Ruanda-Urundi.

Only Expropriation Can Open Road to Public Says Williston

Lands and Forests Minister Ray Williston said yesterday that nothing short of expropriation could open up a 31-mile logging road from Campbell River to Metchosin for public travel.

"This is different from a road on Crown-owned land," he said. "This is Crown-granted land and there's little the government can do unless we expropriate."

Mr. Williston said yesterday that the government had made repeated representations to the Elk River company but the firm continued to place "rather severe restrictions" on the road's use.

"If it is decided that this is the only road route up the west coast I expect some action will have to be considered by the government," he said.

Queen Sadly Tucks Tots Into Bed

LONDON (Reuters)—Queen Elizabeth sadly watched her two youngest children being tucked in their beds on the eve of a six-week separation from their world-travelling mother.

Friday at 12:45 p.m. local time the Queen and Prince Philip will leave London airport for New Delhi to start a 20,000-mile tour of India, Pakistan, Nepal and Iran. They are due in New Delhi

Saturday. It will be the first royal visit to India in 50 years.

The flight will mark the 12th time in almost nine years on the throne that the Queen has been separated from her children by an overseas tour.

This time she and Prince Philip will be away for the first birthday of Prince Andrew, Feb. 19. They are due back in London March 6 after bringing to 50 the number of countries and colonies they have visited either together or separately since the Queen's reign began in February, 1952.
